

CAL TO CLEAR SLATE OF MANY ODDS AND ENDS

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1928 by Post Pub. Co.

Washington—President Coolidge intends to clean up as many of the major and minor questions as possible before Mar. 4. He is approaching the end of his term with a feeling that by proper cooperation from congress, the short session can accomplish results on many tasks it has left hanging in the balance and that the decks ought to be cleared for the new administration so that the president-elect can embark on new policies without trying to settle old ones that long ago should have been resolved.

The president is determined that a start be made on the agricultural program. He feels that now that the equalization fee and its implications have been passed upon by the electorate the coordination of agriculture can be achieved in other ways. There are pending questions like Muscle Shoals which probably will not get much further in the short session than they have before.

In fact the extra sessions as a rule means tendency to let things slide on the theory that there will be plenty of time in the longer sessions.

The president is represented as feeling that if proper steps are taken much of the work can be cleaned up at this session and then the matter of an extra session can be decided later by the next executive on its merits.

DELAY ACTION

Within a few days congress will assemble and as usual the conversation is that some things have no hope of action and others may be pushed through. The situation, however, differs this time in that the older heads are really figuring it out that what they have ahead of them is one continuous session and that they might as well realize the importance of making a beginning in the December session.

One difficulty is that after Mar. 4 the present congress ends and all legislation would have to be introduced again and passed by the one or the other of the houses to achieve a status which many bills now have. There are several measures which have passed one house or have been favorably reported by an important committee, in one house and have passed the other house as well. The pressure will be to get action on these bills before any others though the matter of priority of legislation depends largely on what the chances are of ultimate passage. The republicans have hardly a majority in the senate but have control of the house. It is possible for a filibuster in the senate to block an important measure but with the prospect of an extra session the chances of a filibuster being of much practical value are naturally diminished.

MUCH CORRUPTION AMONG U. S. BORDER PATROLMEN

Detroit—(AP)—John R. Watkins, United States district attorney, Saturday said statements made by some of the 14 customs border patrol inspectors arrested Friday on warrants charging conspiracy to "assist liquor smuggling and with accepting bribes, implicated most of the remaining 112 members of the patrol."

"From the statements of these men it appears that the entire patrol is honeycombed with corruption and money-taking," Mr. Watkins said.

Twelve of the inspectors spent Friday night in the county jail after intensive individual questioning. One man pleaded guilty and was ordered held to the grand jury. Three pleaded not guilty and two of these were released on bond.

TWO INJURED IN JUGO-SLAV STUDENT RIOT

Croat Students Tear Down Three Flags in Tenth Celebration of Union

Zagreb, Yugoslavia—(AP)—Two students were seriously wounded and many others injured during the tenth anniversary celebration marking the foundation of the kingdom Saturday, when Croatian students tore down three national flags from the cathedral and replaced them with three black flags as an expression of Croatia's disapproval of the celebration. This enraged Serbian students and resulted in open conflict. Firearms, sticks and other weapons were used.

The people of Zagreb in general refused to celebrate the holiday because of the murder of Croatian leaders in the parliament at Belgrade last June. Papers there barely mentioned the fact that Saturday was the tenth anniversary of the union.

In Belgrade, however, the streets were bedecked with flags and crowded with happy throngs celebrating the anniversary. Great processions of Sokols (athletic organizations), students and other nationalist organizations passed through the streets to attend a service of thanksgiving which was held in the cathedral.

All Belgrade papers published special editions giving the history of the union and an account of the progress made during the last ten years.

6 BEFORE COURT FOLLOWING RAID

Men Alleged Connected With Large Still Released on $2,000 Bond Each

Madison—(AP)—Six men, alleged to be connected with the largest moonshine whiskey distillery ever uncovered in Wisconsin, were arraigned Friday afternoon before U. S. Court Commissioner Frank R. Bentley, and bound over for hearings to be held here Dec. 10 and Dec. 12.

They were arrested Tuesday when federal and state prohibition officers surprised them in a barn on a farm near Kilbourn. The men were surrounded and captured after a gun fight in which no one was wounded.

In the barn, officers found a 1,000 gallon still, 1,400 gallons of alcohol and four vats of mash.

Those arraigned were: John Schmitzke, Albert Diamond, Ted Azarola, Michael Degalma, Louis Schindler and Arnold Zellin. All are said to live near Kilbourn. Each was released on $2,000 bond.

RAIN OR SNOW LIKELY DURING COMING WEEK

Weather outlook for the period of Dec. 1 to Dec. 8:
For the region of the Great Lakes—Rather frequent precipitation; temperatures below normal first of week and probably rising within latter half.

For the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys and the northern and central great plains—Not much precipitation likely during week; temperatures mostly below normal first half, probably rising within latter half.

HASTEN HUNT FOR MAN AS STORM APPROACHES

Munising, Mich.—(AP)—The eighth day of the search for August Kleist, wealthy Pontiac businessman, saw efforts redoubled with a snow storm expected soon to block the hunt. Confronted by this possibility, the force of searchers was increased to 150 men, in addition to 12 conservation wardens and the search was shifted to west of the Manistique river, including the dense Creighton swamp into which Kleist may have wandered.

Suzanne Lenglen In U.S. On Mystery Visit, Report

New York—(AP)—An unheralded visit to the United States by Suzanne Lenglen, tennis marvel of France, provided material for a mystery Saturday.

With her mother and a young American, she landed innocently Friday night from a transatlantic liner but why she came or whence she went could not be learned. In fact her mother insisted Suzanne wasn't even here.

"She is in France," said Mme. Lenglen here in French as she sat atop 21 pieces of luggage waiting for the customs inspection. "She did not come on the steamer."

"No speak English," said the young man in the best California accent. "Those who know a temperamental French tennis star when they see

REPORTS MUCH PROGRESS ON FARMS IN U. S.

Secretary Jardine Says '1928 Will Go Down in History' for Achievement

Washington—(AP)—Despite the clamor of demands for farm relief legislation, Secretary Jardine in his annual report, to President Coolidge declares that "it is beyond question that 1928 will go down in American agricultural history as a year of achievement."

Insisting that the gross income from agriculture this year will be well above the 1927-28 total of $12,253,000,000, the Secretary nevertheless couples his forecast with the statement that "this does not mean that agricultural grievances are insubstantial nor does it mean that the remedy for these very real difficulties should be left to the free play of economic forces."

"The situation from which agriculture is still suffering has complex economic, social and other roots, he says. For these the nation cannot escape its just share of responsibility in that its officials advocated overwhelming expansion of production during the war. In like manner the nation must accept its share of responsibility in seeking and applying sound and adequate relief."

ENTITLED TO AID
"In short, agriculture is entitled to practical governmental help in rebuilding its fortunes on a firm and permanent foundation."

Without offering any hard and fast farm relief proposal the secretary suggests that "farmers could benefit themselves by giving major attention to quality production. Encouraging agricultural legislation, he draws attention to laws already enacted, such as the cooperative marketing

CREW ABANDONS SHIP IN MIDDLE OF OCEAN

Japanese Steamer Rescues All Aboard—Reported Towing Disabled Vessel

Seattle—(AP)—A wireless to David R. Girwood, Seattle manager of the Canadian American Shipping company, Saturday morning reported the company's disabled freighter, Chief Maquila, had been abandoned in mid-Pacific and that her crew had been transferred to the Japanese steamer Yogen Maru.

The message, which came from the Yogen Maru, said that the ship was left to her fate as water continued to rise in her holds and because of a lowering of the barometer. She carried eight officers and about 32 Chinese as a crew.

Another wireless message intercepted by the Mackay Radio and Telegraph company at Portland from the Japanese ship indicated that a strong southwest gale was pouring heavy seas over the disabled vessel, making pumping operations impossible. The Portland message also indicated that the Chief Maquila was being towed by the Yogen Maru.

The Chief Maquila, bound from British Columbia ports with a cargo of grain and lumber for Shanghai, sent out distress calls early Thursday morning. The Yogen Maru arrived alongside Friday. Cause of the trouble was not clearly determined here but company officials believe that rough seas caused her cargo to shift.

STOCKS IN SHARP FALL ON NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York—(AP)—Stock prices fell off sharply in the last hour of trading on the New York Stock exchange Saturday.

Hoover Changes Ships On His Way To Ecuador

U. S. S. Cleveland, off Guayaquil, Ecuador—(AP)—President-Elect Hoover and his party were transferred from the U. S. S. Maryland to the cruiser Cleveland Saturday morning and the Cleveland immediately began her eight-hour run across the roadstead and up the river to Guayaquil, the principal port of Ecuador.

The Maryland arrived at her Ecuadorian anchorage at 5 o'clock Saturday morning and the transfer of the Hoover party to the Cleveland was completed safely at 6:20, the cruiser immediately starting on her run to Guayaquil.

U. S. S. Maryland, off Guayaquil, Ecuador—(AP)—Herbert Hoover planned to set foot on South American soil Saturday for the first time on his present good will tour. His program included a landing at Guayaquil and greetings by President Ayora and other officials. He will spend the night in Ecuador.

Mr. Hoover and members of his party were to be guests of the Ecuadorian president at dinner. Mrs. Hoover was to return to the Cleveland for the night but others of the party intended to remain ashore at a hotel.

Sunday the president-elect and his party are to board the Cleveland for the trip back to the Maryland and anchor will be weighed late in the day for Callao, Peru, the next port of call. From Callao the president will go to Lima, the capital city, to be greeted and entertained by President Leguia.

Ecuador, the country selected for the first stop on the good will tour of South America, has a population estimated at a million and a half, with cocoa as the principal product. Time limitations will not permit the president-elect to visit Bolivia, but nevertheless, he may be greeted by Foreign Minister Palacio and other cabinet members.

After the gentle ministrations of King Neptune's court on crossing the equator many of the Hoover party are somewhat stiff and sore. All, however, will keep vivid memories of the experience. Maryland's equatorial veterans outdid themselves in their initiation, knowing that Mr. Hoover would be a spectator.

Quakes Rock Chile Area; Fear Deaths

Many Houses Destroyed and Communications Severed in Earth Shocks

Santiago, Chile—(AP)—The towns of Talca and Chillan were shaken by a violent earthquake shortly after midnight and fears were felt here that many victims would be reported.

Meagre advices received by wireless said that many houses were destroyed and severe damage caused. Telephone and telegraph service was interrupted. The minister of war left for Talca by airplane Saturday and troops from nearby garrisons were ordered out for rescue work.

The authorities have asked that a state of siege be proclaimed in the affected region. Every effort was being made Saturday to restore communications.

MANY KILLED, RUMOR BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINA—(AP)—A dispatch to La Nación from Santiago says that numbers of persons are reported to have been killed and injured in an earthquake Saturday in the region south of Santiago.

Persons arriving in Santiago by automobile reported that the town of Santa Cruz was in ruins and that the cities of Curico and Talca were severely damaged.

ALLEN-A KNITTER SHOT DOWN FROM TOURING CAR

Kenosha—(AP)—The first outbreak of violence in the Allen-A labor dispute for three weeks Saturday had sent police on a hunt for the assailants of Herbert Reiser, 21, Allen-A knitter, who was seriously wounded as he reached home from work.

Reiser and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Frederick Reiser, said they were just in front of their home when someone in a dark touring car, with side curtains pulled, followed them and a shot was fired, striking Reiser in the back.

A 14-year-old boy scout, Edward Sweig, saw the shooting but could not, an account of darkness, recall the license number.

The bullet was removed from Reiser's back by doctors Friday night and they said his condition is "most encouraging." The bullet was turned over to police.

According to authorities, they have a good description of the car from which the shots were fired and they expect to locate it soon.

DR. FRANK TELLS BADGER STUDENTS HOW TO WRITE

Madison—(AP)—Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, believes that the "average" newspaper reader is a myth. He so told 400 high school journalists attending the annual meeting of the State High School Press association here Friday night.

"Do not make the mistake of treating the whole reading public out to a mythical average reader who does not exist, never has existed and never will exist," Dr. Frank said. "Spend less time speculating about writing over the heads of your readers or writing down to them, and spend more time finding out what is going on inside their heads. Do not begin with the assumption that the American mind may be tickled, but must not be challenged."

"This is the first essential," the president said, "for making good newspaper men and women."

SETBACK ADDS TO FEARS OF HIS SUBJECTS

Monarch Passed Fairly Comfortable Night, Physicians' Bulletin Says

London—(AP)—A slight rise in King George's feverish condition was announced in the medical bulletin issued at Buckingham palace Saturday morning.

The nation had been hoping that his majesty would make a steady, although necessarily slow, progress toward recovery. The knowledge that his fever was higher, if only slightly, gave a tinge of uneasiness to public feeling.

The king was stated to have passed a fairly comfortable night, however, and his doctors announced that there was no change in his general condition, in which some improvement was announced Friday.

The evening medical bulletin on the king's condition gave little comfort to an anxious empire. Signed by the king's physicians, Sir Stanley Hewitt and Lord Dawson of Penn, it said: "The condition of the king shows no change this evening."

SOME IMPROVEMENT, BUT—A more informative statement was issued during the afternoon by Sir Stanley and Lord Dawson and also Sir Humphrey Rolleston. It is said the inflammation of the lung and pleura showed some improvement and that the king's temperature was slightly lower. The bulletin pointed out, however, that the time of possible exacerbation of the infection had not yet passed and that in any case progress would be slow.

Exacerbation is the medical term for a temporary increase in the violence of the symptoms of a disease.

Queen Mary left the palace twice during the day, once spending nearly three hours in private visits.

The prince of Wales is not expected to arrive in England earlier than Dec. 13, even by following the tentative plan outlined by the admiralty and taking the fastest route across Europe. The admiralty announced the prince had practically decided to leave the fast cruiser enterprise at Suez and then proceed by train to Alexandria. There he would embark on another British warship, probably the Froisher, for either Brindisi, Naples or Marseilles.

The prince, who has been awaiting the arrival of the Enterprise at Dar-es-Salaam, Tanganyika, East Africa, left there to make a trip to Zanzibar but he was expected to return to the Tanganyika port Saturday. He would embark on the Enterprise Sunday.

SIX MEN ENTOMBED AFTER MINE BLAST

Rescue Crews Have Little Hope of Finding Workers Alive in Coal Mine

Bluefield, W. Va.—(AP)—Mine rescue crews Saturday were endeavoring to reach six men entombed by an explosion Friday night in the Princess-Pocahontas Coal company mine on Spice Creek, near Roanokefield.

Little hope of finding the men alive remained after the rescue workers had toiled throughout the night in efforts to force their way to the spot more than a mile underground where the explosion, believed only local in extent, occurred.

Dewey, England, one of seven men in the mine at the time of the blast, escaped. He provided the rescue men with information concerning conditions below. England was not injured but he was unable to go to the other men, working about 1,000 feet from him, because of gas.

Robert M. Lamble, chief of the West Virginia Department of Mines, was on his way from Charleston to direct rescue work.

REPORT FIRST ACCIDENT OF BADGER HUNT SEASON

SMITH CLUB WORKS FOR ELECTION OF NEW YORKER IN 1932

Washington—(AP)—The Al Smith Democratic club of Washington like John Paul Jones has "just begun to fight."

The group has passed a resolution to "maintain its origin as an active, energetic body to foster and animate a nation-wide movement to bring about the nomination and election of Alfred E. Smith, in 1932."

A preamble to the resolution extols the defeated Democratic standard bearer and denounces the activities of the Klan and Anti-Saloon League. No mention is made of the New York governor's announcement that he never again expected to run for public office.

3 Kill Man To Nullify Witch Spell

Club Farmer to Death for Lock of Hair to Break "Spell" Over Them

York, Pa.—(AP)—Police said Saturday that John Blymer, 32, and John Curry, 15, two of the three under arrest for the killing of Nelson D. Rehmyer in an effort to get a lock of his hair to break a spell they believed Rehmyer had cast over them, did not intend to regret the slaying.

They did not intend to let Rehmyer but they are not sorry he is dead for the spell has been broken, as the philosophy of the two, the police said.

Wilbert G. Hess, whose family was led to believe that Blymer was a "pow wow doctor," seems to be the only one of the trio who worries over the killing. He was present when Rehmyer, a farmer, was clubbed to death last Tuesday night in his home.

The lock of hair sought was to have been buried eight feet underground to "break the spell."

A cursory investigation of the antecedents of the tragedy reveals that a coterie so-called "pow wow doctors" in York and at least one in Lancaster co had much to do with the mental state of the three that led them to the crime.

When Detective Ralph Keech first learned of the witchcraft element in the killing he got in touch with Charles W. Dice, who has figured in witchcraft in York and vicinity. From Dice he learned that Blymer was the "doctor" in the Hess case. Dice was unable to tell the identity of the man of slighter build and known as "John" said to have been with Blymer on his visits to Rehmyer. The latter's wife gave the detectives this description.

103-YEAR-OLD WOMAN DIES IN MINNEAPOLIS

La Crosse—(AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Reed Dunham, who celebrated her 103rd birthday Oct. 20 in the little Minnesota village of Hokan, nine miles west of here, where she lived 53 years, died Friday night at the home of her granddaughter in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Dunham was felicitated by President Coolidge upon her hundredth birthday three years ago. She was greatly interested in politics, and from the time equal suffrage was granted until a year ago, voted at every opportunity. She was physically active until that time, and showed a keen mentality that enabled her to keep abreast of the changing times.

STANFORD LEADS ARMY ELEVEN AT HALF, 6-0

Fourth Period (Incomplete)—Stanford 26; Army 9.

Yankee Stadium, New York—(AP)—A big strong Stanford football team got the jump on an alert Army outfit Saturday to score a touchdown in the first period and maintained the lead at 6-0 through the first half. The Californians outplayed the Cadets throughout the first period, but Army rallied in the second and made a driving though unsuccessful bid for a score.

Britten Defends Stand On Armament Gathering

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Britten of the house naval affairs committee, whose proposal for a naval conference between the United States and Great Britain was regarded in some quarters as unorthodox, is standing by his guns.

He expressed the belief that results will come from his suggestion and has replied to critics who intimated that he had exceeded his authority in communicating with the British prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, in a cablegram to Premier Stanley Baldwin, proposed that members of the house naval affairs committee and a committee selected from Parliament meet in Canada to talk over his statement that he had set no precedent in communicating with the British prime minister direct, instead of going through the regular diplomatic channels.

"For the past 25 years nearly every country on earth," he said, "has recognized the right of its parliamentarians to meet and exchange views on matters relating to a bet-

FARM RELIEF, TARIFF WILL BE DISCUSSED

Campaign Promises Complicate Work Left Unfinished Last May

EXPECT DEBATE ON DAM

House Also Must appropriate Funds for U. S. During Fiscal Year

Washington—(AP)—Returning to the capitol to pick up where they left off last May, members of the seventeenth congress Saturday found their calendar of unfinished and routine business for the concluding short session beginning on Monday complicated by new demands of campaign promises.

Even before the arriving congressional hosts could get into their desks Saturday to bring out old bills neglected in the press of the last session, conferences were being called to take up the fate of legislative promises born in the intervening campaign, principally tariff revision and farm relief.

Monday afternoon as soon as the opening session of the house is concluded, Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to discuss the much discussed question of whether tariff revision is to be undertaken, if so, when.

But this was not of much concern to about 40 members of the house and 7 members of the senate who were defeated in the November election. They go out March 4.

Unfinished work presents a real problem in the senate which starts off almost as soon as the gavel falls with the resumption of debate on the Swing-Johnson Boulder canyon dam bill. Besides a batch of executive nominations to be acted upon, the senate also has before it the administration's naval construction measure and the new Kellogg anti-war treaty.

While its leaders and committees are studying over the prospects for farm relief and tariff revision—prime issues in the campaign of President-Elect Hoover—the house will plunge into its annual task of appropriating the money to run the government during the approaching fiscal year.

However, the ever present problem of farm relief and the new one of tariff revision is holding the attention of the pre-session discussions along with a friendly contest in the senate as to who is to succeed Vice President-Elect Curtis as Republican leader of that body.

Opinion of the Republican leaders who have the upper hand in both the house and the senate has been divided as to whether farm relief in the form of a marketing measure should be dressed at the short session or left to an extra session which Mr. Hoover has promised if the problem is not disposed of at the short session.

Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, the chairman of the senate agriculture committee, has drafted a new farm marketing bill, establishing a federal farm board designed to cope with the surplus crop problem. He will ask immediate action on it. He has plenty of support, including that of Senator Carper of Kansas.

EXPECT 500 P. T. A. MEMBERS AT MEET

E. G. Doudna, State Normal Regent Board Secretary, to Be Speaker

About 500 members and officers of rural school Parent Teachers associations of the county will be guests of the Parent Teacher association of Roosevelt Junior high school and the First ward school at a joint meeting at Roosevelt school at 8 o'clock Monday evening.

The meeting was planned by the two city associations for the purpose of "getting acquainted" with their rural school associates in the same field. A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, headed the arrangements committee.

Parental Responsibility in Education will be the subject of an address by E. G. Doudna, secretary of the state normal school of regents, at the meeting. Mr. Doudna is to be the featured speaker on the program. Mrs. George Zachow, Marinette, president of the state Parent Teacher's association, is to give an address on What a Federation of Parent Teacher associations Would Mean to Our Schools. B. J. Rohan, superintendent of Appleton schools, will give an address of welcome and Mr. Meating will give the response.

Following the talks there will be a social hour.

JARDINE REPORTS PROGRESS ON FARMS

act of July 2, 1925, the agricultural credits act of 1927, and statutes in 28 states authorizing formation of cooperative associations. Much has already been done by this and similar legislation, he argued, toward improving the situation of the American farmer.

In the fields of farm credits and crop insurance the secretary found the greatest need for future improvement, though he felt that the Federal farm loan system and interstate date credit banks have already greatly increased safety and stability. "Much has been done in recent years," he says, "to improve agriculture's credit facilities, but much remains to be done."

Mr. Jardine's optimistic outlook took into consideration his notation that "in value our agricultural exports for the year were 1 per cent less than those of the preceding year and were, the smallest in the last five years." He set forth that agricultural exports amounted to only 38 per cent of the total and explained that cotton exports fell off 30 per cent in volume, wheat 6 per cent, and that apples and pork products, both leading export items, showed reduced totals. Barley, corn, rice, tobacco and prunes, however, showed encouraging export increases.

Other vaults, which underlie each of the three floors of the state-house, offer many interesting tales. For instance, there is a leather-bound volume, laboriously written in longhand, which contains the first laws of the territory of Wisconsin.

The first territorial legislature met in 1836, and was composed of a house of representatives and a council, taking the place of the present assembly and senate. Before this time, the state was part of the territory of Michigan.

The first law is one amending the act governing sheriffs as it had been established by the legislative body of the Michigan territory. In order, all legislative acts passed in this state since that day are filed in the vaults. Until 1893 it was the practice to write the law books in longhand, then, the state started the practice of printing them.

At the end of a legislative session, it was the practice for each legislator to affix his signature to the book containing the laws that had been passed.

In the vaults every bill that has been introduced in the legislature since Wisconsin became a state in 1848 is confined. These records of ten are valuable to courts and attorneys' generals because by studying them the legal judiciary of the state can in a fair way determine what was the intent of the legislature in regard to laws in question, it is explained.

George Brown, in charge of records and elections under Secretary of State Theodore Damman, shows the aging sheet which was compiled in the 1848 to determine if Wisconsin was to become a state.

The record discloses there were close to 13,000 votes cast in the election, 12,334 favoring the joining of the union.

Every record of all elections in Wisconsin, both as a territory and state is on file.

Shipping orders and bills of lading will be discussed by persons taking the chamber of traffic study course when the group meets Monday evening. The classes were started early this fall and are under direction of Roy G. Wort, chamber traffic manager.

State Office Contains History Of Wisconsin

Madison—(P)—The earliest days of territorial Wisconsin are tangibly linked with the present through yellowing records in the vaults of the secretary of state's office. Here important papers of state since 1836, the year in which Wisconsin became a territory, are kept.

These vaults, which underlie each of the three floors of the state-house, offer many interesting tales. For instance, there is a leather-bound volume, laboriously written in longhand, which contains the first laws of the territory of Wisconsin.

The first territorial legislature met in 1836, and was composed of a house of representatives and a council, taking the place of the present assembly and senate. Before this time, the state was part of the territory of Michigan.

The first law is one amending the act governing sheriffs as it had been established by the legislative body of the Michigan territory. In order, all legislative acts passed in this state since that day are filed in the vaults. Until 1893 it was the practice to write the law books in longhand, then, the state started the practice of printing them.

At the end of a legislative session, it was the practice for each legislator to affix his signature to the book containing the laws that had been passed.

In the vaults every bill that has been introduced in the legislature since Wisconsin became a state in 1848 is confined. These records of ten are valuable to courts and attorneys' generals because by studying them the legal judiciary of the state can in a fair way determine what was the intent of the legislature in regard to laws in question, it is explained.

George Brown, in charge of records and elections under Secretary of State Theodore Damman, shows the aging sheet which was compiled in the 1848 to determine if Wisconsin was to become a state.

The record discloses there were close to 13,000 votes cast in the election, 12,334 favoring the joining of the union.

Every record of all elections in Wisconsin, both as a territory and state is on file.

Shipping orders and bills of lading will be discussed by persons taking the chamber of traffic study course when the group meets Monday evening. The classes were started early this fall and are under direction of Roy G. Wort, chamber traffic manager.

U. S. HAS BEST AIR TRAINING, DAVIS AVERS

Secretary of War Says Aviation Instruction Is Second to None in World

Washington—(P)—An aviation training system second to none in the world is claimed for the army by Secretary Davis in his annual report to President Coolidge.

While the strength of the air corps is below that authorized for the first increment of the five-year expansion program, the secretary of war said aircraft construction of war had gone through a period of standardization and that improvement in existing lines might be anticipated in the future rather than changes in equipment. The numerical decrease in equipment, he said, had been offset by increase in quality.

Final determination of the strength of the combatant branches of the army, a solution of the promotion question, and completion of the housing program will give the United States, in the opinion of the secretary, "a permanent military establishment unequalled in morale and in professional effectiveness of a high ratio to its small numbers."

WORK TO STABILIZE

The aim of a stabilization of policy during the last four years, Mr. Davis told the president, has resulted in uninterrupted internal progress with gratifying results. All elements of the army have progressed markedly. Progress has not been confined to the distinctly military activities of the war department but has been quite general in all the varied non-military projects.

With an aggregate of 127,337 commissioned, warrant officers and enlisted strength, exclusive of the Philippine scouts, at the close of the year, Mr. Davis said the strength of the overseas garrisons could not be depleted to provide increment for augmentation of the air corps. If further reductions are necessary, and one probably will be during this year, they must continue to be made in the personnel branches within the United States.

"It is with grave concern," Mr. Davis said, "that the war department contemplates further reductions in branches which within the United States total but 66,105 soldiers for an area of 3,000,000 square miles and a population of over 120,000,000."

"There has been a distinct elevation of the standards of units and individuals," he said. "Many hundreds of officers of the permanent establishment have completed courses in the splendid system of service schools. More maneuvers of varied type and extent have been held. Many have been conducted in conjunction with the navy; practically all have combined the use of air and ground troops."

BUYING ON CREDIT IN APPLETON IS ON INCREASE, REPORT

Indication that merchants are wary of whom they give credit to, and that buying on credit in the city is increasing, is contained in the report of the Merchants Information Bureau at the chamber of commerce. Last month the bureau answered 798 calls, the largest number ever handled in one month. Despite the fact there is one holiday this month and one less day than last, reports show that calls again will approach the 800 mark.

SCHOOL PLAY WILL INCLUDE GIRL CHORUS

"The Mikado," fifth annual production of the high school boys and girls glee clubs, which will be presented at Fischer's Appleton theatre Monday evening, Dec. 10, will include a special dancing chorus of 12 girls in costume. Costumes for the chorus will be obtained from the Dave Miller costume shop in Milwaukee.

The chorus includes Misses Jean Shannon, Roberta Burns, Anita Cabot, Mary Blank, Cleo Seyboldt, Marguerite Bushey, Ida Downer, Dorothy Davis, Virginia Hoesgood, Jeanette Johnson, Ruth Gillette, and Florence Nelson. Specialty dances will be given by Miss Virginia Hoesgood and David Trittien.

Rehearsals for the "Mikado" are being held under the direction of Miss Ruth McKennan, high school dramatic director, and Carl S. McKee, director of the glee clubs.

Miss Evelyn Mundhenke, a graduate of Lawrence college and now teaching at Rockford, Ill., is visiting Miss Ellen Tutton, personnel director at the college.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Rohan spent Thanksgiving day at Gillett. Mr. Rohan formerly taught in Gillett.

No Experiments In Post-Crescent Model Home

Home Builders Need Have No Hesitancy About Its Features

For several weeks the Appleton Post-Crescent has been devoting considerable space on this page to a discussion of the Model Home it is building on Opechee-st. and we do not believe we are flattering ourselves when we say the project has attracted widespread attention. From the beginning an effort was made to avoid dry technicalities in these discussions but to present them in a way that will maintain reader interest in the project.

The number of people who visit the house under construction is the best indication of the interest the building has created and it is safe to predict the number of visitors will increase as the more interesting and understandable features are installed.

The Model Home has created the largest interest among those who are prospective builders and among those who are considering remodeling their own homes. It is most worth-while for prospective builders to visit the Post-Crescent house for they surely will find in it something of the things they are looking for.

The Post-Crescent Model Home is not ambitious to be called the most massive or the most luxurious in the city but it does claim to be the equal of any in the matter of protection against fire and in the incorporation of conveniences and labor saving devices.

Some of the things in the Model Home have been on the market for years but not generally used or recognized while others are the result of more recent experimentation. All of these have been thoroughly tested and their worth demonstrated before they were incorporated in the Model Home.

No part of the Model Home is an experiment, indeed experiments were not tried. The practices used in building and equipping this structure have been time-tried and found satisfactory in every respect so no one need have hesitancy in adopting any of the features which make this Model Home almost unique in Appleton.

As was stated at the outset the principal purpose of this Model Home project is to acquaint readers of the Post-Crescent with the most modern practices in home building and to prospective builders find ideas that will enable them to make their homes more comfortable and their ambition will have been realized.

Model Home Is Equipped With Steel Windows

In keeping with its distinctive appearance, the Post-Crescent Model Home will be equipped with steel casement windows, a feature popular for such a long time in England. For a number of years nearly 90 per cent of the homes built in England were furnished with steel casement windows to the exclusion of all other kinds; the popularity of this window is now taking hold in America.

The double hung window was brought to this country from Holland by the early Puritans. It remained in favor in this country until only a few years ago. Now home builders are turning to the new type.

The Fenestra casement window which the Model Home will be equipped with is made of a special grade of dead soft, open hearth steel insuring longevity. One of the features of the window is that it can be cleaned from inside the room without leaning out over the sill. This is made possible by using extension hinges so that the sash, when open, is held about five inches away from the frame. Through this space

How to Reach the Post-Crescent Home

The Post-Crescent's Model Home is located on E. Opechee-st. Autoists can reach the property by turning to the right off E. Pacific-st. at the point where Highway 41 turns to the left. The lot is a block south of the corner of E. Pacific and N. Lemnawah-sts. or follow street car line to entrance of Riverside Cemetery, turning right on Owaissa-st. The rear entrance to lot is one block south on Owaissa-st.

No Garbage Cans Around Model Home

The garbage can, that obnoxious adjunct of almost every home, will be among the missing at the Post-Crescent Model Home. The garbage disposal problem has been solved for all time by installation of a Kernerator, an interesting apparatus manufactured by the Kerner Incinerator Co. of Milwaukee.

This device consists of a combustion chamber of fire-brick attached to a chimney which provides a draft to air-dry garbage so it will be readily consumed. Hopper doors are located in the garage, just a step from the kitchen, and on the second floor. Garbage, refuse, tin cans, bottles and every thing the family wants to get rid of is dumped into the incinerator and about once a week a lighted match is dropped in. The air-drying process has prepared the garbage and refuse so that it burns readily without the slightest odor and the only thing left to do is to remove the fine ash from underneath the grate.

The Kernerator must be built into the house it is constructed as it is an integral part of the building. The principle of operation is very simple. The garbage is dumped through hopper doors on to a grate and a draft created by the chimney will carry the refuse sufficiently so it will burn readily. Even tin cans are destroyed and bottles and glass is cracked so it can be easily removed.

Soft Water Will Reduce Living Cost

Soft water, without the inconvenience of a large cistern to occupy valuable basement space, will be one of the features of the Post-Crescent's Model Home. And there will be an inexhaustible supply no matter if the fall rains are heavy or light.

This supply of soft water, available at any hour of the day or night by the mere turning on of a tap, is to be furnished by a Duro Automatic Water softener, manufactured by The Duro company, Dayton, Ohio.

The Duro softener actually will reduce the cost of living in the Model Home. Its initial cost is surprisingly low and its operating cost is but a few cents a day, which is saved many times over.

In the kitchen softened water saves time and labor. It is good to drink. Foods cook more quickly in it and they retain their natural flavor. It saves more than half the soap required for service in hard water and leaves glassware, silverware and dishes bright and clean. It never causes a greasy film on the water to interfere with the work.

It is an easy matter to reach out and clean the outside face of the glass.

There is little difference in the cost of the steel casement and the double-hung, wooden windows. The reason for the reasonable cost, it is pointed out, is that the steel casements come completely assembled, with hardware in place, all ready to go into the building. There is no fitting to do, nor any hardware to be bought and attached.

The steel casements open easily and close tightly, and they are more weathertight than weatherstripped wood windows. Consequently, dust as well as rain and cold are shut out. Wood trim is almost wholly eliminated in installing them, resulting in less painted woodwork to keep them clean than in the case of the old-style window.

Fenestra casements were selected because they are artistic and practical, attractive and convenient. They lend an air of refinement and hominess, and are fire-proof, never warp, swell, shrink, stick or rattle because they are made from bars of solid steel. Their sturdy steel construction gives them exceptional durability, and they do not rot or decay.

Likewise do they provide controlled ventilation. When the wind is directly toward the window, the leaves may be opened wide to receive the full effect of the breeze. When the wind is parallel to the window, one leaf open 45 degrees will deflect the breeze directly inside. The swinging sections close against the frame with a wide, flat contact, which forms an absolute protection against storms.

Solid steel construction, and strong welded corners make possible the use of narrow muntins and framing members, thereby increasing the area of glass. As compared to wood windows, Fenestra casements admit more light through the same sized opening or the same amount of light through a smaller sized opening, thus conserving valuable wall space.

Air Conditioner In Model Home Protects Occupants Health Throughout Year

One of the unusual features of the Post-Crescent Model Home will be the Lewis Air Conditioner which will be installed by S. F. Reid, 425 E. Brewster-st., local representative of the Lewis corporation of Minneapolis, Minn.

The Lewis Air Conditioner, which will be located in the entrance hall on first floor, assures properly controlled humidification in the home. Medical authorities now agree that our homes need considerably more humidity than they receive under ordinary circumstances during the winter months. When the average heating plant is operating and the air in the house is dry, it becomes necessary to provide an air conditioning unit which will control the moisture content of the indoor air. The automatic humidity regulation, the re-circulation of air, and the washing of air as accomplished by the Lewis Air Conditioner achieves this ideal condition.

The heated air in the home is driven by the fan up against a counter-current of water trickling down the corrugated plates. This action thoroughly washes and purifies the air and the extra large surface of water exposed on the plates coupled with the turbulence caused by the corrugations assures ample evaporation of water. The dust particles, tobacco smoke, germs, etc., are retained by the water to be carried away to the drain pipe and the purified, water-laden air comes out clean and fresh as a lake breeze.

The cabinets used with the Lewis Air Conditioner are artistically designed and blend into the equipment of the room as a piece of fine furniture rather than as a radiator. Because of the cabinet design and principle of operation of the unit, walls and draperies remain clean as the heated air is delivered out into the room away from the walls and surrounding surfaces. No dust is to be found above the cabinet as this is washed out of the air in the unit.

The cabinets are constructed of fine furniture steel and are guaranteed not to buckle or sag. They are usually furnished with only a priming coat of paint, making them adaptable to finishing in any color or any grain finish to correspond with the color scheme in the room. The top of the cabinet is insulated from the heat so that it may be used for vases and other ornaments without danger of heating them.

The heater is constructed of copper tubes held rigidly in place by horizontal copper fins spaced to cause all air to come in direct contact with radiating surfaces. The top and bottom headers are a special bronze alloy. The tubes are constructed of a patented lock seam tubing. On steam pressure of two pounds and an entering air temperature of 70 degrees Fahrenheit, when circulating 150 cubic feet of air per minute, the final air temperature is 132 degrees Fahrenheit.

On steam pressure of two pounds and an entering air temperature of 70 degrees Fahrenheit, when circulating 150 cubic feet of air per minute, the final air temperature is 132 degrees Fahrenheit.

The equivalent square feet in radiation is 55 square feet which with a circulation provides a high heating efficiency.

Each Air Conditioner will maintain an average relative humidity at 68 degrees Fahrenheit of 45 percent. The average home has a cubic foot capacity in the living space of 9000 cubic feet and this unit has been designed to thoroughly condition such a capacity of air per hour.

The unit is equipped with a special condenser type, low speed, quiet operating motor. The motor will not interfere with radio reception. It is fully enclosed and protected from dust. The motor operates on the usual single phase, 110 volt, A. C. house lighting circuit.

The fan is specially constructed aluminum disc fan which is noiseless in operation and delivers a constant volume of 150 cubic feet of air per minute through the air conditioner. The power is consumed by the motor and solenoid when the unit is operating averages 57 watts or less than the ordinary 60 watt lamp. The cost of operation is but half a cent per hour.

The motor is equipped with "wool packed" phosphor bronze bearings so that all oil is filtered before it comes in contact with the bearings. Large oil reservoir are provided so that the motor requires oiling but once per heating season.

All water which passes through the spindles to the humidifier section is filtered through a bronze bodied strainer. Which is of 100 mesh to inch .0001 cloth. The whole may be readily cleaned if necessary.

No Attention Required By Gas Boiler

The family cat can do the job as well as the head of the house, so far as actual labor is concerned. About all there will be to "firing the furnace" in the model home will be to ignite the fire when the weather gets chilly in the fall and turn it off again when the sun makes artificial heat unnecessary in the late spring.

The Post-Crescent home will be heated by gas, the most modern of all heating fuels. Coal bins and oil storage tanks will be as unnecessary in the model home as a fly in a bowl of soup. The only fuel storage is that maintained by the gas company.

A Gar Era boiler manufactured by the L. J. Mueller Furnace Co. of Milwaukee, will heat the Model Home. This boiler, occupying a floor space of only three square feet, is so efficiently constructed that it requires absolutely no attention and will last as long as the building. Every operation is entirely automatic and it is carefully insulated to secure minimum fuel consumption.

The burners are large and scientifically designed and no more are put in than are absolutely required and each burner is faced on four sides by waterbaked heating surfaces. The flues are narrow to present an extensive heating surface and every square inch is water backed and the sections are set with gaskets ground iron to iron to make them permanently gas-tight. The entire furnace is surrounded by an insulated casing.

The burners are adjustable as to combustion so they will give the best service for any natural or artificial gas.

The electric gas valve is closed by a powerful spring and opened by an electric magnet and doesn't require a motor. When the electric current is off the valve is closed and when it is on it is opened only so far as to furnish the amount of fuel required. The safety pilot opens the circuit, closing the magnetic gas valve in case the pilot flame is extinguished.

Room temperature is determined by a Minneapolis automatic thermostat just like any other furnace might be. But other furnaces require attention to oil supply or to the coal bin, but the Gas Era boiler keeps on going without ever a thought of the owner.

Sink That Washes Dishes Is Marvel Of Scientific Age, Housewives Report

The modern kitchen sink — one that washes the dinner dishes — has come at last and it will be one of the fixtures in the kitchen of the Appleton Post-Crescent Model Home.

Science has accomplished a great many wonders but there are few more appreciated by the housewife than the harnessing of electricity to wash the dishes.

Washing dishes by machinery is something new, as ages are counted. No doubt Eve stared the dish-washing habit soon after her lamented encounter with the snake and the habit has stuck with us, with here and there a sorry exception, down to the present day. The habit wouldn't have been so bad if Eve had started in washing by machinery but she made a hand job out of it and a hand job it has remained until this marvelous age when Science became interested and made electricity do the work.

The Kohler sink in the Model Home is a massive and marvelous affair. It measures 70 inches from end to end and is 23 inches wide with an apron eight inches wide and back twelve inches high. This high back is assurance that the wall never will be splattered from the sink no matter how much the water pounds out of the faucet.

ACID PROOF ENAMEL

The sink is finished with an Ivory flint gloss enamel, impervious to acid, that will last as long as the house. This is an important feature, as many housewives have learned from experience the havoc caused by fruit and other kinds of acid on the ordinary kitchen enamel.

If the water is really hot there is no drying to do, only the polishing of the glasses and silver. The china dishes need not be touched. Drying by their own heat they may be lifted from the dish washer and put away, or left, protected from dust by the tight fitting cover until the table is to be set again.

The sink in the Model home has two other wells beside the one used by the dishwasher. The well on the end opposite from the washer is covered with a heavy plated cover, matching the cover on the dish washer, which is used as a drain board.

is one of the advantages of concrete tile building units. They are perfectly adapted to any style of architecture. They have rugged strength and are easily and rapidly handled.

Concrete tile assure superior insulation against heat and cold. They are fireproof, permanent. They reduce the cost of up-keep and increase the value of the home as an investment.

If you can afford to build a home, you can afford one of concrete masonry.

Menasha Man, Alleged to Have Sold Liquor, Bound Over for Trial on Dec. 7

Menasha—Frank Lippich and Peter Krapidowski, Menasha, were bound over on liquor charges until Dec. 7, following preliminary hearings in municipal court at Oshkosh Friday. Theodore Klaus of Menasha, a witness for the state, testified that he had purchased moonshine from both Lippich, a bartender, and Krapidowski, owner of the Racine-st. soft drink establishment, on Nov. 10.

There was only one charge against Lippich, that of selling intoxicating liquor. There is a similar charge against Krapidowski, and there is the additional charge of maintaining a public nuisance. Klaus on the witness stand Friday said he spent several hours in the Racine-st. place on Nov. 10, during which time he consumed about a dozen "shots" of moon. He was not drunk when he came to the saloon, he testified, but was intoxicated when he left.

He said that when he got outside the building, somebody shoved him off the steps and he landed on his back in the gutter where Police Chief Lyman and another officer found him and arrested him. Police Chief Lyman, on the stand, detailed similar circumstances about the arrest, but stated that Klaus was sitting with his back against the running board of a car parked there.

Klaus stated it was Frank Lippich who pushed him off the steps, with the statement that Klaus couldn't get away with that. Klaus said he did not know that Lippich meant by that, but he admitted having some argument during the afternoon with a person, called John.

Married Half Century

Friday marked the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Schmidt, Sr., who have lived in Neenah for about 46 years.

Relatives and friends helped the couple celebrate their golden wedding at their home Saturday.

Golden Wedding Is Celebrated At Neenah

Neenah—Surrounded by their six children and 26 grand children, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Schmidt, Sr., Saturday are celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage with open house, a dinner family reunion, and reception to relatives and guests.

William H. Schmidt was born March 29, 1853, and Mary Hengsfels was born March 2, 1856, in Germany. They were married Dec. 1, 1878 at Hamburg. They resided in Germany until 1882 when they came directly to Neenah, and have resided here for the last 46 years.

Mr. Schmidt was employed by the Weickert company a few weeks after his arrival here and has worked continuously for that firm since. He is still at the head of the carpenter department. Mrs. Schmidt is an active member of Immanuel Lutheran church and its ladies societies and auxiliaries. She has raised a family of six children, William, Jr., Otto, Emil, Fred and Emma Schmidt, and Mrs. William H. Kuehl, who all reside at Neenah. Two other children, Mrs. William Neubauer and another son, Paul, are dead. Mrs. Neubauer died a few years ago and Paul Schmidt died in infancy.

A feature of the event is the presence of Mrs. Schmidt's two sisters, Mrs. Fred Zachow and Mrs. Henry Zoelk, both of Neenah, who were bridesmaids at her wedding. There was also present Mr. and Mrs. Fred Niese of North Tonawanda, N. Y., who surprised the couple Friday afternoon. They have not seen each other for many years. Mrs. Niese, a widow, is the wife of Mr. Schmidt, was at the latter's wedding in Germany.

During the afternoon reception at the home on Third-st, more than 200 relatives, neighbors, and friends, including the Immanuel Lutheran Ladies' Aid society, called to offer their congratulations. At 6:30 a dinner was served to more than 250 people at Knights of Tythias hall, the dinner being followed by a dance.

Mrs. Romiek was a member of the Royal Neighbors, Christian Mothers' society of St. Mary church, and the Rosary society of St. John church. The body was removed Friday afternoon from Menasha funeral home to her residence on First-st.

CAR HITS TELEPHONE
POLE; BADLY DAMAGED

Menasha—While attempting to avoid a collision with a car driven by Clarence Kessey, who was backing out for the filling station at the corner of DePere and Sixth-sts, Al Blank's car struck a telephone pole and was quite badly damaged. No one was injured.

LIST STILL GROWING

Neenah—The Friday list of new members of the Red Cross totaled 13. Among those who signed were Knights of Tythias, George A. Whiting, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lawson, Margaret Golden, C. T. Sund, Mrs. Emil Dece, O. T. Thompson, Agnes Sorenson, Anna C. Hayward, Laura Vanderloo and F. E. Johnson.

CALL FIRE DEPARTMENT TO SCHOOL BUILDING

Neenah—The fire department responded to a call Friday evening to the new high school building where it was thought a blaze had started inside. Investigation disclosed a fire in a large heater used by the builders in drying out the building. There was no danger as there was a watchman on the job but someone saw the fire inside thought the building was on fire.

LEGION PLANS DANCE
AT ARMORY JAN. 8

Neenah—American Legion will sponsor a dancing party on the evening of Jan. 8 at S. A. Cook armory, according to recommendations made by the executive committee Friday evening at the Falvey clothing store. Recommendations to be presented Monday evening at the regular Legion meeting, were prepared. It was also decided to have the post service officer, Robert Ebert, attend the state service officer conference Sunday at Milwaukee.

PLAN BOARD DISCUSSES
1ST WARD IMPROVEMENT

Neenah—First ward improvements were discussed Friday evening at the meeting of the planning commission at the city hall. There are several streets to be continued to the south city limits which will afford a number of good building lots in that part of the city, and these were recommended plat and the streets laid out to conform with plans submitted by the city engineer. These recommendations will be presented at the next meeting of the city council.

SPECIALIST FILES
BANKRUPTCY CLAIM

Neenah Doctor Lists Liabilities at $10,862, Assets, $4,260

Neenah—Dr. G. H. Galford, eye, ear, throat and nose specialist, has filed a petition of voluntary bankruptcy in the Eastern District United States court at Milwaukee. His liabilities are listed at $10,862 and his assets at $4,260.

Among the debts listed, a part of which are secured claims, are $700 to M. L. Lettingwell, who holds a mortgage to that amount on the office equipment; $930 to Louis Herziger, secured by a mortgage on a lot in Park Lawn plat at Neenah; J. T. McCann, Appleton auto dealer, secured by a mortgage on an auto; $1,300 to Edward Evenson of Minocqua, secured by a mortgage on land there; $1,600 on an unsecured note to his father-in-law, H. O. Krenner of Brown, Ill., and $1,000 in miscellaneous accounts, including clothing secured from various Appleton, Neenah and Oshkosh firms.

The doctor was preparing to leave the city the latter part of the month.

NEENAH
SOCIETY

Neenah—Members of the Musicians' union of which Charles Herrick has been a member for the last 25 years and of which he was president for many years, called at the Herrick home Friday evening to assist Mr. and Mrs. Herrick to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of their marriage. During the afternoon and evening more than 150 relatives, neighbors and acquaintances gathered to offer their congratulations. Relief corps members and Eastern Star, of which Mrs. Herrick has been a member for many years, were represented in the list of callers. At 6:30 a dinner was served to the family and a few invited guests, the rooms being filled with floral tokens from friends and relatives. The decorations in the dining room were "pink and white."

At the December meeting of the C. B. Clark Circle, Ladies of the G. A. R. next Tuesday evening, each member will bring a gift which will be sent to the Veterans' Home at Waupaca at Christmas.

A group of people called Friday evening at the home of Albert Woelker, Winnebago-ave, to assist him in celebrating his birthday anniversary. The evening was spent in playing cards. Prizes were won by Carl Dragewski and Lee Zeilinski.

Bagle social club will give the second of its series of Saturday evening dances Saturday evening at the aerial hall. Music will be furnished by the Aerial orchestra.

Miss Letha Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Johnson, and Milton Steffen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Steffen, went to Waunakee, Ill. Saturday morning where they will be married. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mertiz, who will be witnesses.

CITY MAY HIRE MAN TO ENFORCE ORDINANCE

Neenah—An extra man, independent of the police department, may be engaged to enforce the new ordinance providing a two-hour parking limit on Wisconsin-ave and Commercial-st, according to several aldermen. The ordinance requires the patrolling of the streets during the morning of autos. The police officers are busy at times in other parts of the city and cannot give the proper attention to the automobile law, it is said. Should the new man be engaged he would be under the supervision of the street, highway and bridge committee of the city which would cause arrests to be made and see that fines were assessed. The ordinance will go into effect Monday, although it was enacted almost two years ago. No signs were erected and consequently no arrests were made.

WISCONSIN WEATHER
Fair tonight, probably followed by rain or snow Sunday; slightly warmer tonight, and in southeast portion Sunday.

GENERAL WEATHER
The low pressure moving across the lake region during the past 24 hours has been attended by rain or snow quite generally over the eastern states. A high pressure area overlying the Rocky Mountain region has failed to gain strength or to move eastward, and a low pressure area now overlies the north-central region, with continued cloudy weather and moderate temperature in this section. The advance of this "low" southeastward is expected to result in considerable cloudiness in this section tonight, probably followed by rain or snow on Sunday, with but minor changes in temperature.

LATEST NEWS OF THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

OFFER PLANES ON INSTALMENT PLAN

Scheme Employed in Automobile Business Will Be Followed by Ford

Baltimore, Md. — Following closely on the heels of Wall Street's activities in floating securities of aircraft companies, plans have been perfected here by the largest independent financing corporation in America so that airplanes may be purchased on instalments similar to the methods used in financing automobile transactions. Two 12-passenger planes have already been delivered on the partial payment basis, and are now engaged in commercial work on middle western airways.

Back of the project for financing airplane purchases are the Commercial Credit companies, with resources approximating $120,000,000 and pioneers in the automotive financing field. The first fliers to avail themselves of the new financing plan are C. H. Leuthy and his partner, Capt. O. M. Goodsell of Tri-Motored Air Tours, Inc., Port Clinton, O., with J. M. Kenyon of the Kenyon Transportation company, Morris, Minn., as the second aviator to test out the financing plan. Both planes are products of the Sout Metal Airplane company, a division of the Ford Motor company, Detroit. Each plane cost nearly $50,000.

Organization of a special airplane division of Commercial Credit companies, headed by C. W. Mitchell, Jr., former navy aviator, came after more than a year of investigation and study on the parts of financing and insurance experts. "Researches demonstrated that aviation has finally reached the point in stability, safety and transportation necessity where it no longer can be ignored by conservative insurance and credit companies," said Mr. Mitchell. "Three insurance companies have offered to issue policies which are a part of our financing contracts. Other insurance companies are working on the problems involved, and it will not be long before many insurance concerns will have aviation departments."

"When commercial credit was extended to the automobile trade by our company in 1912, the idea was novel. But today about 65 per cent of all motor cars are purchased on time payments. We expect aviation financing, although novel today, will be commonplace within a short time. Judging by the histories of the automobile, radio and numerous other industries selling high priced products, instalment purchasing will prove a great stimulus to air plane sales."

In the beginning, the finance company and the associated insurance organization are moving carefully. For the present, only planes selling for $10,000 or more will be financed. Later, Mr. Mitchell states, the restrictions and requirements will be altered as experience takes dictate.

Time buyers of airplanes make a minimum down payment of $3,133 per cent plus the standard finance charges, about the same as the rates prevailing in the automobile trade. Insurance rates are much higher for the airplanes than for other financed machines. The insurance coverage is inclusive, repaying for losses by fire, theft, winds, crashes, public liability, property damage, and passenger hazards if passengers are carried for hire. In case of a plane costing $21,000, the present insurance rates against all hazards is estimated at $3,750, more or less, depending upon three main factors: Type of plane, pilot's record, character of proposed service.

MANUFACTURE NEW HEAVY DUTY TIRE

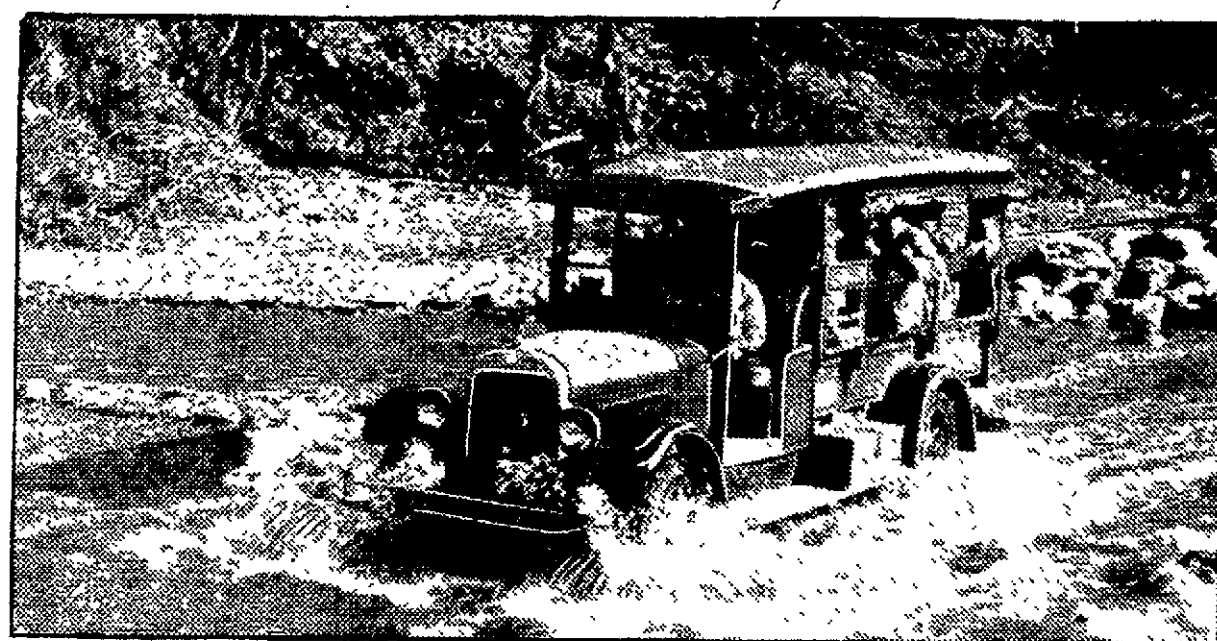

Miller Product Meets Luxury Requirement of Particular Motorists

The new tire is designed to meet the requirements of the motorist who demands superlative luxury in tires. Mr. Scheurle said that speed inviting highways, steadily increasing traffic regulations and other conditions that demand more of tires have combined to create a new division in motoring in which many motorists demand a sturdy tire that will give long mileage under the most grueling conditions.

The new Miller heavy duty passenger tire, Mr. Scheurle said, has a carcass of six plies of extra strong cord fabric of Egyptian cotton with extra heavy cushioning of the highest live rubber combination of the tread is heavier and tougher and the familiar Miller tread design is improved somewhat adding beauty and safety to silent running. Two strips near the edges of the tread are flanked on either side by the Miller design that runs well down the sidewall. Between the running strips, in the center of the tread, the Miller design is so fashioned that the road gripping qualities of the tire are appreciably increased.

Mr. Scheurle said that the new durable tire will give the hard driving, relentless motorist the luxuriant and dependability that he has been seeking. Also, it will give the average motorist most astonishing mileage. While the demand on tires varies, Mr. Scheurle said, with the car owner, the new six-ply heavy duty passenger tire represents actual tire economy with its ability to wear long and well.

DODGE ADDS NEW SPORT ROADSTER

Graceful Lines Feature Latest Model Offered in Varied Color Combinations

Addition of a sport roadster with rumble seat to the Senior Six line has been announced by Dodge Brothers, and shipments to dealers are being rushed to insure immediate deliveries. Sport types include as standard equipment two spare wheels with tires, mounted in the front fenders, and trunk rack in rear.

All exterior hardware of the roadster, including radiator shell, head lamps, bumpers, hub caps, door handles, cowl lamps and moulding and spare tire brackets are chrome plated, attractively setting off the body lacquers and color combinations in which the car is available.

The seat is unusually wide, easily accommodating three passengers and upholstery is genuine leather. Four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers and balloon tires (31x6) properly control the car's roadability. Convenience and beauty are emphasized in the arrangement of the instrument board and driver's controls.

Grouped under a frosted silver finished panel are the speedometer, engine temperature indicator, fuel gauge, ammeter and oil gauge. Carburetor adjuster and manifold heat control are at the driver's right, and ignition switch with theft lock in the left panel. A cigar lighter is in the steering column bracket. Light control levers, and spark and gasoline throttles are mounted on top of the steering wheel. Automatic thermostatically controlled radiator shutters afford the greatest year around operating economy. The hand brake at the driver's left, and four wheel Lockheed hydraulic service brakes insure braking facilities matching the powerful six cylinder engine designed for the Senior Six line.

With the introduction of the sport roadster, the Senior line is now composed of seven body types including the couple and sport coupe, sedan and sport sedan, Victoria brougham, landau sedan and sport roadster.

President and General Manager
BUICK MOTOR CO.

Detroit—Praising Detroit newspapers and officials of the city for the safety campaign which recently has been waged against speeders and reckless drivers here, E. T. Strong, president of the Buick Motor Co., has expressed the hope that a similar program might be carried out in every city town, and hamlet in the nation.

Messages are being sent to the more than 4,000 Buick dealers throughout the country, each of whom will be urged to get behind such a movement in his district. "The fact that some communities have accomplished so much in the humanitarian work of avoiding traffic casualties is conclusive proof that the campaign can be carried to a successful conclusion everywhere," Strong declared. "and the Buick Motor Co. pledges the fullest cooperation of its plant resources in working to this end."

"The automobile no longer is a luxury—it is a necessity, and much of its immense value to the world is being periled by those who use the streets as speedways and those who drive without due care in the crowded traffic of the present era." That the problem is a big one, Strong is certain, but he is equally certain that with the proper cooperation of all concerned the streets and highways can be made safe and the value of the automobile for business and pleasure consequently increased.

OAKLAND BOASTS OF NEW OIL CLEANER

Device Muffles Carburetor "Hissing," Reduces Fire Hazard

Efficient muffling of carburetor "hissing," reduction of fire hazard and practically 100 per cent air cleaning are advantages claimed for the new type "oil wetted" air cleaner used as standard equipment on the latest Oakland All-American Six. The cleaner, attached to the intake of the larger carburetor, is composed of a porous mass of oil-wetted paper ribbons enclosed in a metal cylinder through which air is drawn, according to Pressch company, makers of the cleaner, in a report to the Oakland Motor Car company. "In passing through the pores of this filtering mass," the report continues, "any dust particles come in contact with the oil surfaces and are retained by adhesion."

"When attached to a carburetor, this type of cleaner acts as an efficient muffler because the dense mass of filtering material breaks up and diffuses sound waves before they are projected out of the cleaner. The result is that all of the objectionable hissing noises so common with unprotected carburetors have been practically eliminated."

"Another distinct feature of the oil wetted type air cleaner is that it will minimize fire hazard. The Underwriters' report in this connection says in part:

"Backfire test showed that the backfire are completely arrested in the cleaner and will not reach the engine compartment. Repeated severe backfires failed to ignite flammable material held within an inch of the shell."

"Inasmuch as a large number of automobiles fires have been traced to carburetor backfire, it is thought that the attachment of a properly designed cleaner to the carburetor air intake will materially assist in decreasing the number of fires."

In summarizing, the report says: "The device is practicable from the standpoint of operating, installation and maintenance; is sufficiently durable to withstand carburetor backfire flames to the engine compartment."

"When necessary to be cleaned, the filter unit may be removed and easily and thoroughly washed by moving it up and down in a pail of gasoline. Re-oiling is accomplished by simply applying oil with an oil squirt can through the air outlet to the filtering material."

"The cleaner element should be cleaned and re-oiled at least once a year under ordinary driving conditions and more often under especially severe conditions."

THOUSANDS VIEW CHEVROLET "SIX"

New Valve in Head Models Are Displayed in New York and Detroit

Detroit—Record crowds highly enthusiastic over Motordom's newest automobile, viewed the new line of Chevrolet six cylinder valve-in-head cars at the national premiers last week in New York and Detroit.

Thousands that crowded both exhibitions to inspect Chevrolet's greatest achievement—"a six in the price range of the four"—enthusiased over the streamlining beauty of the new Fisher bodies, the latest accomplishment of this famous organization.

Visitors were open in their admiration of the "expensive big-car" appearance of the new models. They were pleased with the smart new colors that will distinguish the new Chevrolet from all others; the elegance of the fittings appealed to the most discriminating and the luxurious upholstery pleased the most exacting of the feminine showgoers. They inspected the powerful new 48 horse power motor with its non-detonating high compression head. They were particularly interested in learning that it develops 32 per cent more power than its predecessor which was world-famous for power and that its speed and acceleration has been stepped up to satisfy maximum requirements.

In the shimmering new cars they saw the final product of more than four years research and experimentation in the Chevrolet experimental laboratories, the General Motors Research Laboratories and the General Motors Proving Ground.

The hum of enthusiasm that pervaded both the New York and Detroit exhibitions seemed to presage a new record year for Chevrolet in 1929. Orders were being placed immediately by those desiring early delivery in January when the first of the new cars will be delivered to owners.

Despite the fact that only two cities have seen the new cars, orders in large volume are pouring into the Chevrolet offices from every section of the country. Although the country-wide dealer organization will not have display cars until December 29, the entire sales organization is now equipped with full color illustrations of the cars, literature and other information about the car that promises to write a chapter of sensational success into the automobile history of 1929.

Meanwhile the fifteen giant Chevrolet plants across the country are pushing production with all the speed possible within the limits of precision manufacturing in order to supply dealers with cars as quickly as possible for delivery starting Jan. 1. In order to accommodate the public and the dealers, the December production schedule has been stepped up to the highest on record for the month.

NEW PONTIAC IS PROMISED SOON

Latest Model Will Be Bigger, Smarter, More Powerful, More Luxurious

A Pontiac Six, new in practically everything but name, shortly will appear on the market, it was announced here today by the Oakland Motor Car Company.

A bigger, smarter, more powerful and more luxurious Pontiac, bringing a big car features within the price range of the small six, was promised by the Oakland company. This announcement comes near the close of the most successful year in the company's history with an estimated total output for 1928 of close to 270,000 units, forty per cent above 1927.

In preparation for 1929, extensive building projects under way here for some time past now are practically completed, and will give the Oakland-Pontiac plant a capacity next year in excess of 350,000 cars.

Keen interest in the new Pontiac Six was evidenced in automotive circles here and at Detroit because the Pontiac, first introduced in 1926, has since consistently shattered all previous sales records for a new make of car.

While embodying big car features and performance, the new Pontiac Six will remain within the price range of the smaller six, according to the announcement issued today. National showings will be held around the first of the coming year.

Peace Revives Talk Of Tunnel Under Channel

By ANDRUE BERDING
London—(P)—Progress toward peace and disarmament has revived agitation in England for early construction of a submarine tunnel joining Great Britain and France.

Fear of invasion from the continent, firmly rooted in English history, has lately subsided to the point where an all-land route from London to Paris can be discussed as an engineering as well as political question.

Major General G. Barker, Colonel Commandant of the Royal Engineers, has brought this mooted question to the fore again by a letter in which he says it would be "advisable to reopen the subject, keeping in mind the changed conditions." General Barker was secretary of the Channel Tunnel Military and Civil Committee which began to investigate the subject in 1884 and turned it down.

New experience gathered in America from tunneling the Wellington holes under the Hudson, and in England from building the roadway tunnel 44 feet in diameter under the Mersey is leading experts here to believe that the construction of a tunnel under the channel would offer little difficulties except those of finance and time.

The consequences of the building of an under-channel tunnel would be far-reaching, and the committee which deliberated on the project permitted the military consequences to influence their decision. They thought that such a tunnel would render England more liable to attack from the continent, and would lessen her famous position of impregnable insularity. Parliament, as a result, refused to sanction the building of the tunnel.

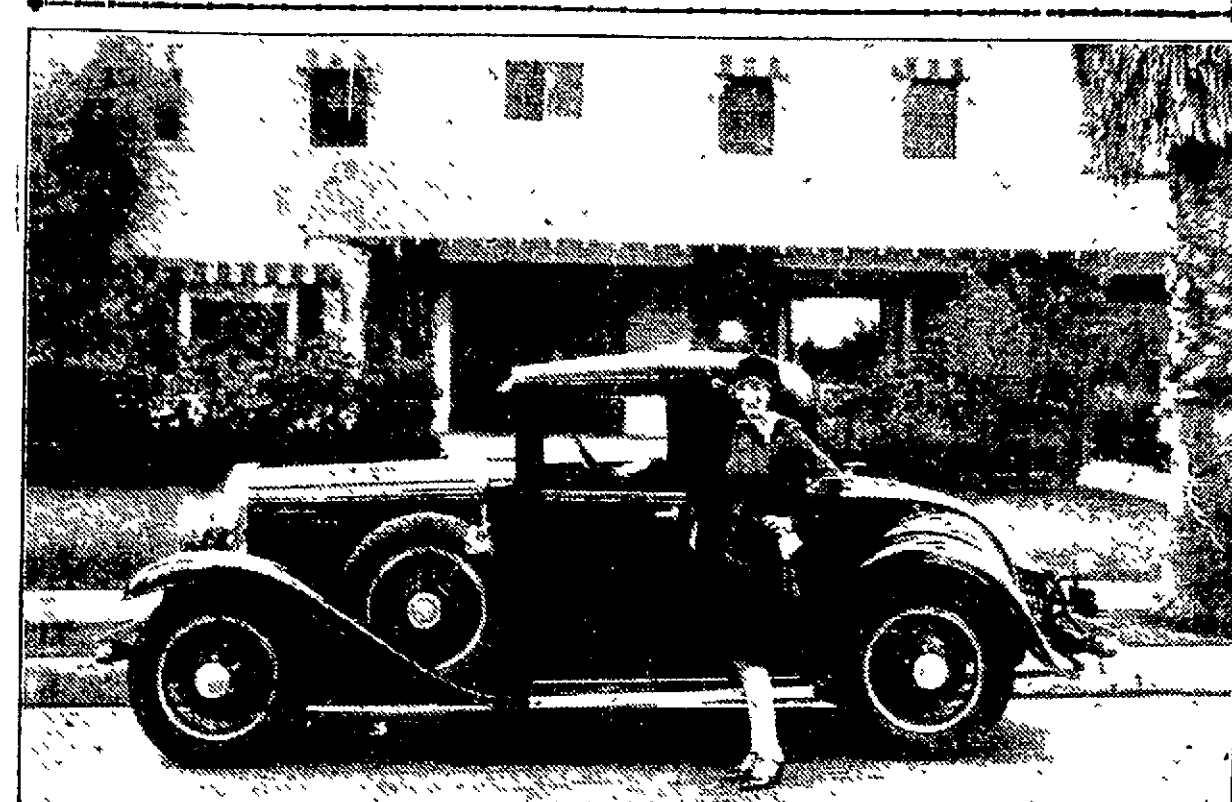

But since those early days the air plane has come and Britain is now little more insular from a military viewpoint than France or Germany. The last air maneuvers over London disclosed how vulnerable the capital is to attack from above. A tunnel linking England with the continent would add little to her danger from attack from the east.

When parliament turned down the Channel project the argument advanced against it was that of the danger of a surprise attack. A continental power, it was said, might mass troops at the French end of the tunnel and pour them without warning or declaration of war into England. But a number of new precautions might be added now to those advanced when the project was first under consideration to guard against surprise.

And it is readily admitted that England's superior navy could sink a submarine or torpedo and demolish the tunnel within an hour or so after the first attack.

Congress Alone Can Stop Razing Of Old Capitol

Washington — Almost a hundred years ago, young Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote "Old Ironsides" and saved the famous old frigate Constitution from being broken up and junked.

Today the remaining national shrines, places where reverent tourists bare their heads and tip their hats as if in sacred precincts, have dwindled to a very few, for not many of them have had an Oliver Wendell Holmes to save them from further generations.

Congress passes numerous bills to erect expensive monuments in commemoration of insignificant Indian skirmishes and to the greater glory of individual congressmen in their own districts. But it seldom concerns itself with objects of national interest much more significant in American history and one can hear a fine tale of woe from old hickmen here who wait that there isn't much "to show" any more.

Congress, seems to be the only body that can prevent the destruction of one more splendid structure which links this age to the past. To do that, however, it must decide whether it dares flout the will of the Hon. William Howard Taft, chief justice of the United States. It must join the school of thought which holds that anything old ought to be replaced with something bigger, grander and better or another school which believes that some old things, because of their part in history and their remaining beauty, ought to be preserved.

A long time ago Mr. Taft began to feel cramped in the supreme court's present quarters in the capitol and looked around him for a site for a fine new judicial building. He picked on a square and a couple of triangles just south of the capitol building and the Library of Congress. The block contains, among other things, the old capitol where the House and Senate met after the British burned the original capitol in the War of 1812. Fearful lest the seat of government be moved permanently to another city, the people of Washington combined to erect what was then a splendid new building, and probably thus saved the capitol for the District of Columbia. It remained the capitol for four years.

Henry Clay was then speaker of the House. James Monroe was inaugurated as president of the United States in this building in 1817.

For a while later it was a fashionable hotel. John C. Calhoun lived and died there, and today the room where he breathed his last is a shrine for many southerners. A man once tried to buy the place so that he could die there, like Calhoun.

There Anne Royall, the enterprising young woman who forced an interview from the austere president, John Quincy Adams, by sitting on his clothes on a river bank when she caught him swimming, became the first woman to edit and publish a newspaper.

During the Civil War political prisoners were kept there, among them Belle Boyd, the famous Confederate spy, and Mrs. Surratt, executed for her alleged part in Lincoln's assassination.

Many Confederate officers, including Mosby, were imprisoned there and today many southerners come here to see where their forebears were often mistreated or menaced by mobs outside. Later Chief Justice Field lived there and General Leonard Wood was married in one of the rooms. And many more things like these.

It is an immense building, one of the finest examples of American architecture of the period to be found anywhere in Washington. On Capitol Hill, its interior stands as a constant source of delight for visitors who appreciate its type of beauty. It has been well kept up and various wealthy persons have contributed toward decorating it with appropriate furnishings.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont gave the place to the National Woman's party in 1921 and that organization has been fighting for two or three years to save it from demolition, preferring that it be taken over and preserved by the government.

All attempts to persuade Taft that there are various equally appropriate sites bordering the capitol grounds, now owned by the government and thus available without cost, have failed. Taft insists that the old capitol be torn down and his new court house there erected.

Condemnation proceedings have been begun. The Woman's party values the property at a million dollars and has brought the leading real estate men of the city to testify that its physical value alone is worth more than half that amount. But the government witnesses have told the condemnation commissioners that the ground is worth but $231,000 and that the building is quite valueless.

"Perfectly outrageous," says Maude Younker, a national executive of the Woman's party. "They only have $1,500,000 to spend for the site and they're putting values on property in this section lower than the owners originally paid for it. Confiscation!"

Senator T. H. Caraway of Arkansas is the prince on the white horse who is trying to save the old capitol from Taft and the modernists. Last session the Senate unanimously passed his resolution which would hold up condemnation pending investigation, only to have it sidetracked in the House by Speaker Longworth. When Congress meets again, the supporters of the resolution hope to get it through. It's the only hope they have left.

Although no promise is made of bicker and better justice in the new supreme court building, there is no question that the court needs more room. Most of the members now maintain offices in their homes, at their own expense.

CABINET SPECULATION

As time passes there is naturally speculation as to President-elect Hoover's cabinet. Although some predictions have already been offered we doubt if any person has exact knowledge as to the make-up of the cabinet. It would not be characteristic of Mr. Hoover to confide to sources likely to leak advance information of his plans. It has been suggested that Mr. Hughes may be invited to become, for the second time, secretary of state. Mr. Hughes has just been elected as one of the judges of the world court, and while it is a very high honor, it is perhaps a question whether he might not feel there was greater service to be performed for his country and the world at the head of the state department for the next four years. Certain it is that Mr. Hughes would make the most acceptable secretary of state to be found. He is without doubt the most mature and able man in public life today. His views are progressive and he believes in international cooperation. Mr. Hoover would be fortunate indeed if he could secure the services of this real statesman.

Again, it has been suggested that Mr. Mellon would be agreeable to remaining in the cabinet. If that is the case he unquestionably would be a valuable asset. Mr. Mellon ranks as one of the greatest financial administrators the country has ever had and he probably could not be improved upon. He typifies the same kind of efficiency and relentlessness of purpose as Mr. Hoover himself. We believe the country would be eminently pleased to have Mr. Mellon continue in his present position.

The president-elect ought to take particular pains to provide his administration with a conspicuously able attorney-general. Above all he should not be a politician. We have seen the dismal and blighting effects of a politician in this office not many years ago, and while his successor is a marked improvement, we believe the office could be still further strengthened. We ought to have for attorney-general not only an alert and aggressive lawyer, but the most competent that can be induced to enter public service. His services to the Republican party should be the last recommendation considered.

Mr. Hoover will have difficulty in filling the post of secretary of commerce with ability to match his own, but he probably knows of men to whom he can impart the wisdom of his experiences and performances and who, under his stimulation and advice, can carry forward the great work now under way.

Probably the postoffice department will go as a political plum pure and simple as has always been the case, but it would be a fine thing for the postal service if it could be otherwise. At any rate, we may expect from Mr. Hoover a minimum payment of political debts in the formation of his cabinet and a maximum effort to concentrate in it genuine talent. The greater the president the stronger he likes to make his cabinet. Lincoln heads the list in this respect, and the rule will be found to hold with all of our presidents to the point that the character of their cabinets reflected very much their own capacity and ability.

FARM RELIEF LEGISLATION

The probabilities are that the most satisfactory farm relief legislation will be obtained by waiting for the special session Mr. Hoover has promised to call next spring, provided the final session of the present congress does nothing. We think it would be better not to attempt a solution of the question that goes as far as to undertake surplus crop control. It would manifestly be all right to raise tariff schedules on any farm products that are being imported in competition with our producers, but the general scheme of government cooperation would better be left to the Hoover administration. We think the framers of this legislation need the advice and guidance of Mr. Hoover. We think Mr. Hoover has a more comprehensive grasp of the problem than has Mr. Coolidge. Not only do we believe he would go further to aid the farmer but he would do it in a more effective and resourceful manner. It must be admitted the Coolidge administration revealed itself to be somewhat weak in this field. Whether the responsibility attaches to Mr. Coolidge personally or to the lack of leadership and agreement in congress, we shall not attempt to say. The record is all that matters now.

Mr. Hoover has stated that he considers farm legislation of first and foremost importance to the nation. He has outlined an original and extensive plan for the stabilizing and prospering of agriculture. As he himself states, it is the most far-reaching project in behalf of an industry ever proposed in any country. There is no reason why it should not be in definite form for action by congress promptly following Mr. Hoover's inauguration, so that the machinery could be set up and the farm board it creates begin to function in 1929. The sixty days or so that might be gained in time by dealing with the subject at the short session will be more than offset by the superior type of bill likely to be passed at the Hoover special session.

CAMPAIGN EXPENSES

The Democratic national committee spent, according to its accounts, $4,845,774 in an attempt to elect Gov. Smith president. Of this amount the sum of $1,311,000 represents a deficit. A final statement from the Republican national committee is not yet available, but it is estimated it will show something like a million dollars more than the amount spent by the Democrats. In other words, it cost about $11,000,000 to conduct the presidential campaign of 1928.

Our puritanically-minded citizens will be inclined to look at this total with some misgiving and up-lifting of eyebrows. Probably our Super-Progressives will denounce it as a scandal and a crime and try to make us believe the Republicans outbid the Democrats in purchasing the presidency. Any such conclusions or inferences are wholly fallacious.

While it is true the sum spent to finance the campaigns of the major parties was large, it was not unduly large measured by the legitimate requirements of conducting a national campaign. Furthermore, it is an absolute fact, no matter what may be argued about the morals of the use of money, that the expenditure of this $11,000,000 in no wise determined the election. In fact, it hardly made a dent in influencing it. The result would have been the same whether ten or twenty million dollars were spent, and the result would have been the same whether the Democrats spent twice as much as the Republicans instead of a million less.

Much as the politicians discourse upon the evils of money in elections, and much as they talk about purchasing office, there is nothing of either about which to worry. Elections and individual voters are less affected by money than ever before. The people make up their minds whom they are going to vote for and all of the propaganda in the world, with unlimited finances, will very little alter their opinion. As for actually buying votes, that is no longer done.

A good cause can always command plenty of money to give it whatever publicity its importance merits. In a general way probably more poor causes are over-financed and bolstered up with propaganda than are good ones. But it makes little difference to the public. It soon sees what is genuine and what is false; it soon learns to discriminate between what is offered in good faith and what is meant to deceive.

Mr. Hoover was to be the next president of the United States regardless of how much money was used in the campaign or by whom used. The same is true of the governor of Wisconsin. Mr. Kohler was nominated and elected because the people wanted him for their governor and for no other reason. Money had no more to do with the result of the primary or the election than the morning dew.

President Wilson named the American delegates who were to accompany him to France to participate in the world peace conference the previous night. They were Secretary of State Lansing, Henry White, formerly American ambassador to France, Edward M. House, Gen. T. H. Bliss.
John Steidel who was on a hunting party in the northern part of the state, shot one of the largest bears ever killed in that part of the country. The bear weighed 500 pounds.
The deer season closed at midnight that night. Very few deer were caught by Appleton men.
Mrs. H. E. Peabody left that day for Janesville to attend the Older Girls' conference.
Miss Katherine Moser and George Rutter, the latter of Kaukauna, were married that morning at St. Joseph church.
Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Priest entertained eighteen relatives and friends at a Thanksgiving dinner at their home the previous day.
Mrs. W. W. DeLone was visiting friends at Waupaca.

IF DENTISTS ARE DOCTORS

WHY ARE DENTAL SCHOOLS
A while ago I made here an extraordinary proposal, nothing less than the suggestion that the dental profession relinquish the trade use of the title of "doctor" to medical practitioners exclusively. I anticipated the usual misunderstanding, expected some snappy rejoinders and hoped for a little discussion of an anomalous situation which I shall refer to later. It has all come to pass.
For instance, the oral hygiene committee of a county dental society ofers for publication a letter beginning thus:
"I do not expect that my letter will effect any change in your attitude that dentists do not deserve the title of 'doctor.' Nevertheless, in self respect we believe..."
And the letter goes on to present some facts, all of which I subscribe to, and some claims that are at least debatable.
One of the facts these dentists (my copy of the letter bore no individual signature but was written on the county dental society stationery) present is that the dictionary definition of the word doctor is teacher, not healer. One of the claims made in the letter is that the dental profession undertakes to teach the laity preventative dentistry, including prophylaxis and dietetics, and therefore deserves the title of teacher or doctor. I still have the temerity to challenge the competence of a good dentist to teach the laity dietetics. But more about that anon—not anonymously. It is a little embarrassing to attempt to debate anything with a "committee," that chooses to remain impersonal. In any case, I challenge the qualification of a good dentist to prescribe a diet for anybody.
It seems strange that I should have on file so many letters of indorsement and commendation of my teachings, from dentists and from dental societies. If I really take the attitude this particular group of ten lists imputes to me.
Many of my dentist friends have reminded me that the present course of study in dental schools of the better class is practically identical with that in medical schools of the better class.
I had no serious notion that the dentists would give up their claim on the title of "doctor" when I launched this preposterous proposal. My motive was more subtle than that. I wanted to stimulate discussion, and I am happy to have evidence that I have accomplished something in that direction.
If the undergraduate dental schools provide virtually the same course of instruction as the undergraduate medical student must take, what excuse can there be for maintaining separate undergraduate dental schools? Are these superfluous institutions run merely to appease the vanity and provide prestige and diversion for the teachers they employ?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Mercuriochrome
Judged by the arguments it starts, your column is a live one! Here is another for you to settle. A says you condemn mercuriochrome and advise the use of tincture of iodine instead, as a first aid treatment of all wounds and an antiseptic. B insists you never have condemned mercuriochrome but merely expressed your approval of iodine and the opinion that it is at dependable as mercuriochrome. (M. A. L.)
Answer—T was the son of an apothecary. Mercuriochrome has distinct advantages over iodine in many instances. An important advantage is that it doesn't bite or smart so much as iodine does when applied to a fresh wound. To my mind a drawback about mercuriochrome is that it stains everything it touches. The comparative germicidal power of mercuriochrome and iodine is still unsettled. Recent tests, which I quoted here, favored iodine as the more dependable disinfectant, but these tests have been challenged and other tests of at least equal scientific weight have swung the pendulum back to mercuriochrome once more. My own policy is watchful waiting. Meanwhile I am clinging to tincture of iodine. Why swap horses while crossing a stream?

Good Reference Book
Our high school science class is studying patent medicines and we should like your opinion on the subject "headache powders." (S. F.)
Answer—Some headache powders are pretty dangerous, especially when taken without medical advice. Perhaps if your principal or other high school representative will ask for it, the American Medical Association, Chicago, Ill., will send to the school library a volume entitled "Nostrums and Quackery," which contains much information about such things, or a copy of a reprint of "The Great American Fraud," which covers headache "cures" fairly well.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Washington — Out on "I" street, huddled in among more modern structures that crowd for room in this passing residential section of Washington, is a plain little red brick church. It is scarcely more pretentious than the old Meeting House, near Chalkont St. Giles, not far from London, where William Penn, founder of the Pennsylvania colony and the Quaker faith in the world, lies buried.
Like its prototype, the Washington gathering place of the Hixite Quakers is a house of worship reduced to utter simplicity. It boasts no steeple or stained glass, no organ, pulpit, choir loft. Less than 300 persons can gather together for

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan
New York—Once a year, when the streets grow sloppy under foot and melancholy haunts, the skies, I make a pilgrimage to 160th Street. There on a highland, perched over Harlem, is the quaint and lovely old home which, for reasons best known to historians, is called the Jumel Mansion.

To visit the Jumel mansion on a melancholy morning, is equivalent to going to the attic and taking down grandma's picture album, or pondering the history of faded tin-types and wellworn cameos. Having no attic, no grandmother, no tin-types or cameos, I must presume that the Jumel mansion offers one of Manhattan's pleasantest escapes from the chaos of the present into the glowing and quaint romance of the past.

From the highland on which perches the Jumel mansion it is possible to watch kinkylhaired pickaninies sailing sticks down the flowing gutters. It's possible to catch a glimpse, in passing, of a black-and-tan jazz cabaret and the garish signs of a high-yellow musical show.
Inside the Jumel mansion, one is thrown abruptly back to lavender and old lace; to powdered wigs and pantaloons; to huge pictures of revolutionary day folk upon the walls and to charming old rooms, through which seem to walk wraiths of the romantic figures who played their part there—and died.

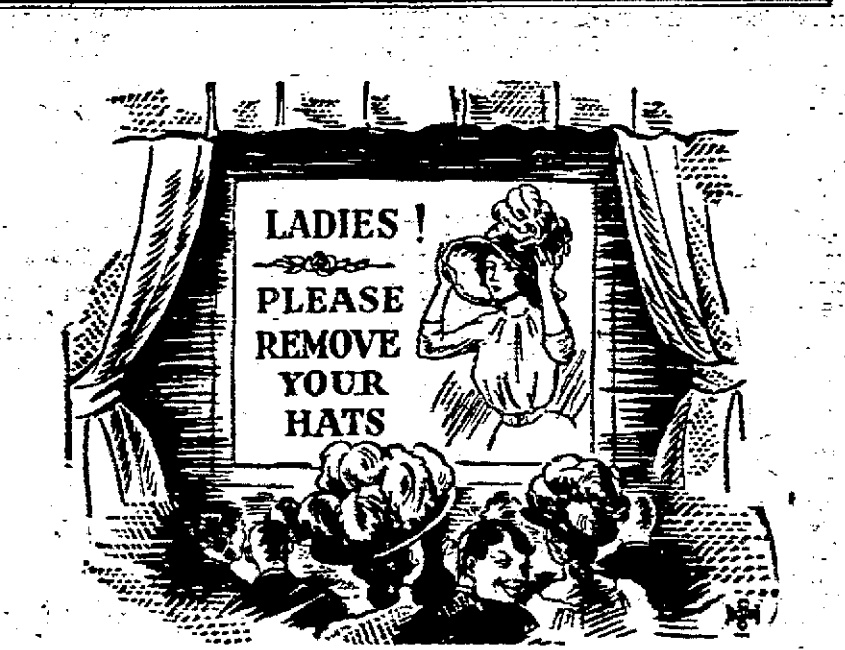

Here is a little sign to tell you that George Washington used such-and-such a room for his headquarters during the Battle of Harlem. Another card informs you that Roger Morris, a Britisher, built the mansion for his bride in 1766 and that when the Colonial cause was won, his property was lost, so he packed up his bride and went home.

Going from card to card, it is possible, piece by piece, to assemble a thrilling, romantic story of the times.
With Morris gone and the Colonials in power, the mansion became a tavern—a sort of stopping point for coaches on the Post Road out of New York. Washington, to help celebrate the victorious turn of events, came back to his one-time quarters, bringing with him a merry party of cabinet officers, their wives and girl friends for a festive dinner party, at which "much that was stronger than the Volstead law allowed was quaffed."

Within the next few years, however, it fell into disrepair and finally was salvaged by one Stephen Jumel, friend of Napoleon, who would have brought the conqueror back to his redecorated home had not a few affairs at home kept Napoleon occupied.
After the downfall of Napoleon, Mrs. Jumel was expelled from France by the government of Louis XVIII after she persisted in riding through the streets of Paris with the insignia of the eagle wings, Napoleon's emblem, on the sides of her carriage.
But Stephen Jumel must have obtained a reversal of the edict, for she returned to France in 1831. She was present at the coronation of Charles X. She embarked on a career of reckless extravagance, wasting the fortune of her indulgent husband. Four years of this and the Jumels were obliged, through financial straits, to close their home in Paris. Mrs. Jumel returned to the mansion on Washington Heights.

Now there was gossip of Aaron Burr visiting the home. Burr had been vice president. In 1823 Stephen Jumel came home; an old man.
Jumel's death in 1832 caused another wave of gossip. He fell from a hay cart; was taken up insensible and was bled, after the fashion of treatment of the day. The next morning he was found dead with the bandage of his arm. He had bled to death.
precautions to guard him, not from dangerous cranks alone, but also from sincere and honest advocates of one cause or another, honest advocates of one cause or another seeking his ear.

With the president of the United States seated among this humble, devout company, new and vexing possibilities are presented. The president is naturally the focal point upon which warring opinions are centered. He must be always surrounded with

ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED
SYBIL THORNE learns that her sister-in-law, VALERIE, is planning to leave her husband and elope with a man who has promised to get her in the movies. Sybil has never cared for Valerie, but she worshiped her own brother, TAD, and for his sake, decides to investigate Val's romance. She goes to New Haven, where Valerie is visiting friends, accompanied by JACK and MABEL, MOORE, newly-weds and Sybil's dearest friends. Valerie's hostess tells them they will find her at a notorious roadside on the Post Road. They go there directly and arrive in time to interrupt an interesting conversation. Valerie's escort is telling her how once he loved a girl named Sybil. Sybil herself has been unhappily married. After a five-day romance she married a fascinating adventurer named RICHARD EUSTIS, with whom she lived only two weeks. As a result of the mad marriage, a child was born. Sybil has never seen her husband since she left him in a drunken stupor in their hotel in Havana. Now, as she approaches the table at which her sister-in-law is sitting, the man with her turns white as death. "Where did you come from?" she exclaims.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXVI
Sybil's hand caught her heart, hugging it through the fur of her coat and the folds of her crimson blouse. It pounded so mercilessly. Across the table she leaned toward him. And between them lay the poor little ghost of a romance. A tawdry small ghost, born of passion and consumed in its flame. The specter of a withered love, ugly now and dead. "You!" she gasped and the exclamation faded on a laugh. A queer, mirthless laugh. Valerie crumpled a napkin and flung it down before her. "Well," she demanded truculently and stared at them curiously. "What's the matter with you two?" "Sit down, Val. Push over." Sybil slipped into the booth beside her sister-in-law. Her knees trembled dangerously. "No scene, now," she told herself sternly. "No hysterics." When she spoke again her voice was even. "Don't get excited," she admonished smoothly. "We'll have this out right here and now. Val, do you know who this man is?" He had slumped back into the booth. Now he passed one hand dazedly across his forehead and with the other fumbled for a handkerchief. Drops of moisture glistened like tear drops on his face and a little mustache of damp misery sat upon his trembling upper lip. "Why, of course I do." Valerie bristled defiantly. "Did you know that he is my husband?" "My God! ... No! Sybil, you're crazy. Tell me, Sybil, you're crazy. I don't believe it. It isn't true! It's a lie! Dar! Dar! Dar!" Frantically she besought him. And then, turned on Sybil, crazily, to bear her with small, impotent fists. "Now Val," Sybil captured her hands. "Don't be a fool. Keep quiet. You're attracting attention. I'm going to get at the bottom of this thing. And then, you can do as you please—and be damned."

"This afternoon I learned that you were planning to elope. I didn't know the man's name. Only that you meant to leave Tad for someone who had promised to get you into the movies." Sybil's mouth curled scornfully. "Is this the man, Val? Why, you poor little fool, jail's the only place he could get you. He's a married man. He's my husband. He's your brother-in-law. He's the worst thing God ever made. He's—he's— Oh, you rat, you! You miserable, rotten cad!"

Firely Sybil turned on him. Quietly then and thoroughly, she lashed him with her tongue. Castigating him with words that cut with exquisite cruelty. And through it all he sat like a man stricken with dumbness; who, being condemned, could find no voice to answer his accuser. "Dar! Dar!" Frenziedly Valerie besought him. "Oh, Dar! why don't you SAY something. Dar! DON'T let her talk like this!" Helplessly he threw out his hands. "Drunk, Valerie, for days and nights on end. Idiotically, disgustingly drunk. ... Worthless ... Irresponsible. ... Without morals or decency."

"Oh, Dar! WHY don't you say something?" "Because there's nothing he CAN say. Val. And you—you poor little fool. Oh, God help Tad! WHY did he marry you?" Then Valerie was crying, softly, into a foolish little handkerchief. "Come on, Valerie, let's get out of here. Jack Moore and Mabel are waiting for us."

"Sybil!" Richard Eustis put out his hand. Entreating. Agonizing. Furiously she struck it away. "Go to hell!" she told him hoarsely. And her voice, with hatred, was coarse and rough. She snatched at Valerie. "You do what I tell you! Ask him now to take you away with him tonight. Or come with me now—and tell him you will never see him again so long as you live." "Dar! Dar!"

He gazed at her incoherently. Impotent before Sybil's rage. And because her god did not answer her, Valerie turned from him. Gathered her wrap about her. And walked with Sybil from the dining room. He watched them go. And Mabel and Jack saw him drop his head upon his hands and heard him groan aloud.

They drove home in silence—a dreadful silence, broken only by Valerie's muffled sobs and the foolish remarks of polite people seeking desperately to make conversation. Sybil and Mabel speak of it, sometimes, as the ghastliest ride of their lives. Jack Moore groans to this day when he thinks of it. But Valerie has never mentioned it. From that night she has been a chastened sort of creature. "What's got into you, Val?" Tad used to joke. "You've a guilty conscience or you'd never be so sweet to me."

And Valerie, glancing nervously at Sybil, would flush and stammer. But Sybil held her peace. Sybil was very quiet that winter, and Tad wondered unhappily if she was disturbed by Craig's inattention. Since that day on the beach, when Tad had expressed his horror of a divorce and its attendant notoriety, Craig had seemed rather to avoid the Thornes. He was devoting himself wholeheartedly to politics, and Sybil saw very little of him. From the papers she learned that the Young Republicans had organized, and that Craig was the particular protégé of the Old Guard. A distinct honor for a young lawyer, and seasoned politicians were predicting big things for him.

In April he took temporary residence in Washington; and Sybil, feeling altogether forsaken, put in motion the machinery that makes divorces. Tad disapproved, as she knew he would. "What are you going to get out of it," he demanded, "but a lot of cheap talk and a bunch of headlines? And every virtuous crowd in Boston talking dirty talk about you. You've no idea, Sib, how the papers would eat up a thing like a Thorne divorce?" "But Tad," she cried, "it could be done so quietly, nobody need even know!" "Quietly!" he scoffed. "Say, a nice, juncy divorce has about as much chance of going off quietly as a presidential election. Look at the Stillman case."

"But that was different!" she insisted. "How was it different?" "But the Stillmans have such oodles of money," she protested. "Well, we're not exactly church mice ourselves," he reminded her. "We've been Sombodies in Boston too long for the papers to leave us alone. You belong to the Vincent Club, don't you? And the Sewing Circle? And you're a darn good-looking girl, Sib. You know how you used to have your picture in the papers about every other day. They've got plenty in their reference rooms. Just start something, and see what they do to you. You'll be smeared all over the front pages."

"At least," she retorted bitterly. "It would establish my status."

"A dear establishment," he groaned. "And a pretty status, if you're asking me."

"I'm not," she told him icily. "I think you're being dreadfully old-fashioned, and just as hateful as can be."

It was Valerie who put the divorce idea into Sybil's head. The affair in New Haven had made a different girl of Val. Humility and gratitude had cured her restive spirit. She devoted herself intensely to the baby, and even took him out in his little stroller. Valerie, who had declared it the depths of provincialism to wheel a baby!

Sybil regarded her sister-in-law with a sort of pitying contempt, and because she even liked her a little. After all, Richard was an engaging devil. And hadn't she loved him herself? Valerie was a fool, of course. They were both fools. Romance was a trap for foolish women. Worse when one legalized the amour. Divorce was such a horror.

It was Valerie who mentioned it first. "Sib, did you ever think what might happen if you should die?" "Val! Don't tell me YOU are philosophizing. Death and Damnation! Oh, Val!" Sybil laughed mockingly. "My dear, I didn't mean THAT. I was thinking about the baby—and your husband."

"What about the baby?" Sometimes Sybil felt motherhood rising like a tide within her—filling her heart and her whole being with an exciting sense of achievement. Her maternity had been so triumphant. The child was so entirely hers. The perfect extension of her own ego. She was very proud of him, and of herself for having created him. Richard's contribution to his creation she disdainfully discounted. "You know," Val was saying, "if you should die, your husband could claim the child. You mother's prayer in a court of justice wouldn't count for a row of pins. Teddy is his property just as much as yours. If you were dead, there's nobody else who would have legal right to him. Tad and I wouldn't have a look-in."

"You owe it to Teddy to get a di-vorice, and absolute custody. Of course, if his father didn't want him, that would be one thing. But my dear—he could make an awful lot of trouble."

"I happen to know something about it, because Julie Johnston got Bunny away from her mother-in-law. After Julie and Joe separated, the old lady took Bunny. And then, when Joe died, she wouldn't give him up. I don't blame her either. Julie hasn't any more affection for that kid than if he belonged to the washerwoman, and Mrs. Johnston simply worships him."

"But Julie took the case to court, and won. Now she's stuck Bunny away at boarding school, and the old lady's dying of a broken heart."

"Sib, you ought to safeguard Teddy from his father. Poor baby! Imagine him under that man's influence."

... ..

The child, playing at their feet, looked up and laughed. A lovely laugh, practically toothless, and in each fat cheek a dimple showed. "Angel!" cried Sybil, and clutched him to her heart.

There never was a baby like Teddy. Such a darling, naughty creature, with innocent long lashes, and eyes as blue as painted china.

There was something of his father about him. His forehead and his chin. And nobody but Richard, Sybil told herself, could care as beguilingly as his son.

Biology was a queer thing. The good and the bad of 10,000 alien Eustises coursed through her boy. What dark traits had Richard bequeathed the child she bore? Richard, worshipping the softness of her skin, the curve of her lips, the liveliness of her shoulders—what thought had he of fatherhood?

Yet in his delight of her charms a miracle came to pass. The creation of a child in his own image and likeness. Oh, magic of the thing called love! And, wonderful to contemplate, Richard, co-creator of the miracle, knew it not. In all its beauty and loveliness it belonged to Sybil, entirely, forever and forever, life of her life, heart of her heart—the child called Teddy.

Fearfully she entered the offices of Snell, Peterson and Mullhall, and asked for Mr. Peterson, a gentleman who handled divorce cases with rare silence and discretion. Attentively and interestedly he heard her story. (To Be Continued)

(Sybil discusses her case with Mr. Peterson, and learns certain terrifying possibilities—in the next chapter.)

FRESH AIR WILL TELL ITS STORY EARLY OR LATE

BY OLIVER ROBERTS BARTON
Pre-school children won't be getting their outdoor exercise these days unless their parents have been foresighted enough to provide for the winter emergency and worked out a plan for it.

"I'm too tired to go out with Ralph by the time I've finished the work," said one young mother. "He'll just have to stay in the house. I can take him to the park each day and watch him while he runs around in the summer time, but now I just can't manage it."

Ralph's mother lives in an apartment. She is a very good housekeeper. Her windows gleam, her floors shine, the curtains are fresh, the whole place is as homey and attractive as an energetic young woman with good taste can make it. Also she is a very good mother.

Ralph is well-fed and to all appearances well and happy. The little boy across the street comes in sometimes to play and sometimes Ralph goes over there.

If his mother goes to shop, she usually takes him along and sometimes they go to a matinee or a movie.

Everything goes along beautifully as a general thing. It was when Ralph picked up a germ somewhere and developed a lung congestion that threatened pneumonia that the doctor asked if he got out in the fresh air every day.

You know his mother's answer.

Ralph's aunt lives in a suburb in a small house with a yard. There are a front porch and a back porch. The street is a quiet one, away from dangerous traffic and when Ralph's cousin Leonard is in the yard or playing on the porch, he is reasonably safe pushing his scooter up and down the sidewalk.

Leonard is out about half the day, buttoned up snugly in his little blue overcoat. When it is very damp, he wears overshoes.

Leonard had the same kind of a cold Ralph had, too. Germs are germs and as his mother says, she can't keep him in a glass case.

But Leonard got well about twice as fast as Ralph. Ralph was pale and wan all the rest of the winter. Leonard was soon as rosy as ever and out on his scooter again.

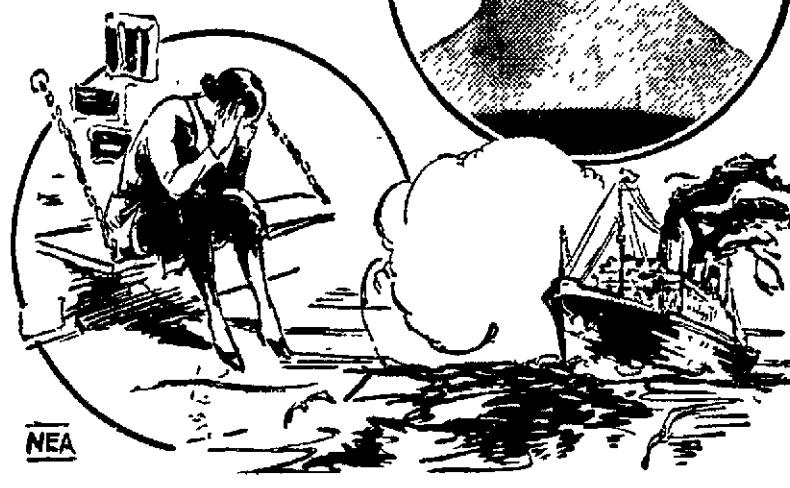

If these cousins of the same age were to run a race, Leonard would beat. If they were to lift a weight, Leonard would have it all over Ralph.

Leonard is happier than Ralph. He gets enthusiastic about the least little thing. Ralph is more or less lethargic.

When Leonard is forty, very likely he will be planning ahead for bigger things in his business, while Ralph, we may predict safely, will be depending on pills to keep him fit and refer to the days when "he used to be able to do things."

Who says fresh air doesn't tell its story? If his mother realized what a big story it really does tell, she would arrange when moving times comes, that Ralph would not have to spend another winter as a shut-in.

America Is Being Won To Birth Control Movement

As a nurse Margaret Sanger first became interested in birth control, was imprisoned for furnishing information about the movement and continued her efforts in establishing clinics and is now so confident that the Birth Control League will continue to grow that she has relinquished her leadership and will go abroad. The founder is pictured above at upper right.

BY JULIA BLANSHARD
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK—Margaret Sanger now proves herself a most modern mother.

For, feeling that the offspring of her life career, the American Birth Control Movement, has grown up to where it can stand on its own feet she turns it out to shift for itself.

After one farewell tour of America, she will be through with it, she has announced.

It is 20 years now since Margaret Sanger, then a young visiting nurse on New York's lower East Side, came face to face with the horrors of poverty stricken mothers giving birth year after year to unwanted children for whom there was no food.

STARTED AS A NURSE
She had been a private nurse. She had seen wealthy women have their children in luxury, happy in the security of wealth, luxury, position and knowledge of how to space their families. The contrast tore her.

So Margaret Sanger left her nursing. She went abroad and studied the birth control movement in Denmark, where the government ran it, and in other countries where it had official sanction and help.

Back in 1916, she started her lone fight in America. "I thought something would be done," she said. In Brooklyn's congested immigrant quarter, she opened her first birth control clinic. In 10 days, 800 women had applied for help. Her work came under the eyes of the police. She was arrested and sentenced to 30 days in jail, for violating the Anthony Comstock law that made it a felony to give any information on birth control.

Relinquishing temporarily the hope of founding clinics, Mrs. Sanger came out of jail to stump the country to influence public opinion on the problem of women's rights to bear only "wanted children." She herself had had three.

Margaret Sanger's 12-year fight as head of the Birth Control League was one long fight for a change in public opinion. "There are 22 clinics and many doctors today who are interested in the movement," she asserted. "I believe women are daring to assert that they are human beings and not biological slaves."

"Now I'm going abroad, probably to Italy. Of course, I can't promise myself complete forgetfulness. The Birth Control League has been my whole interest for so long. But I am through in America, at least."

But, like the most modern of mothers, she wants to help her offspring get a good start on its independent way in this country.

RECEIVED MILLION LETTERS
So she has written a book, "Motherhood in Bondage" (Brentano's), giving excerpts from 500 letters she has received, constituting a cross-section of 1,000,000 pleas that have flooded her office from child mothers, from older mothers with large families and no money from suffering women all over America begging for information on family limitation.

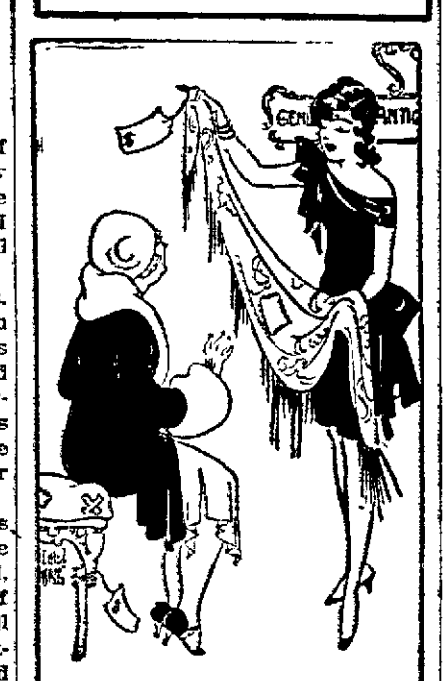

This is the first report Mrs. Sanger even has published of her work in the Birth Control League. She declares her belief that its evidence will change public opinion on the need of legislation permitting the dissemination of information.

"My book shows women are becoming articulate for the first time," Mrs. Sanger explained. "Relief is bound to come, though it cannot come before America realizes it has child marriage and child motherhood compared in its devastating effects to the horrors we lament in India."

Professor Shapley of Harvard announces that he has found the center of the visible universe 47,000 light years away. There haven't been as yet, however, any announcements of good-will trips.

The time is here when the head of the family can go out and lie in a bathtub all night in a drizzling rain to shoot ducks and then come home and sit in a draft five minutes and catch cold.

THE NEW Saint Sinner

By Anne Austin
©1928 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

The purple twilight closed about Crystal Hathaway as she sat on the ground, her back against the smooth trunk of a birch tree. How miraculous that this bit of woods on the Grayson farm should have become in actual fact that "trysting place" of which she had fictionalized so romantically to Tony Tarver. The wonder of it still caught at the girl's heart with a delicious pang.

A book of poems by Rupert Brooke lay open on the ground near her knees. She had felt the need of poetry lately. As she waited now, waiting with a heavenly certainty that she would not wait in vain, that he was as eager to see her as she to see him, she quoted softly aloud from one of the poems she had been reading:

"Safe in the magic of my woods
I lay, and watched the dying light,
Faint in the pale high solitudes,
And washed with rain and veiled by night."

Crystal was glad, for the sake of her suit and her health, that there had not been any rain, but otherwise, how beautifully the poem fitted this night and this tryst. She went on quoting:

"And I knew
That this was the hour of knowing,
And the night and the woods and you
Were one together, and I should find
Soon in the silence the hidden key
Of all that had hurt and puzzled
me—
Why you were you, and the night
was kind,
And the woods were part of the heart of me."

So much had hurt and puzzled her.

SMART APRON AND CAP

One of the smartest and most serviceable aprons of the season is shown in Style No. 3344. The apron cuts entirely in one piece with strap extensions that cross at center-back and button. Cut it out and bind edges, and stitch pockets in place—and it's finished! Think of it! And the most remarkable thing about it is that it only takes 2 yards of 36-inch material with 5% yards of binding for the medium size, the pattern for which comes in sizes small, medium and large. Chambray, plain gingham, printed cotton, plain satin, cotton pique, cotton broadcloth and English prints are appropriate and can be had in very attractive coloring. Pattern for one-piece cap that fastens at center-back and rolls included. Price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred). Our patterns are made by the leading Fashion Designers of New York City and are guaranteed to fit perfectly. In ordering pattern, why not enclose 10 cents additional for a copy of our new Fashion Magazine. It shows the most attractive winter styles. Also lovely suggestions for useful Xmas gifts, that will be truly appreciated, that you'll find very inexpensive to make.

Crystal mused. Why, she had been hurt and puzzled since she was fourteen years old. When she first had discovered that boys were not attracted to her. Only her mother had understood and had been mutely sympathetic.

And now her mother was dead. Tears began to slip down Crystal's cheeks. Maybe she was a very wicked girl—"making up" Pablo Valencio, because she had no real lover to boast of to Tony and the other girls, and now lying to Faith and Bob so that she could slip away to meet the real Pablo, who was not an artist at all, not even a "gentleman" just farm laborer whose only painting was done on barns.

But she didn't feel wicked—not half so wicked now as when she had tried so hard to attract George Pruitt or Harry Blaine, or—Dick Talbot. That last name still had the power to make her wince. . . . Of course she wasn't in love with him any more. Let him run after Tony all he wanted to. A lot of good it would do him! Tony meant it when she said she didn't want to be married.

For the thousandth time Crystal wondered how any girl could not want to be married. Of course she wasn't taking this queer September episode with Pablo Mendoza seriously! . . . Of course not! . . . But it was sweet to be so much admired. . . . No man else—no other man—had ever looked at her as Pablo Mendoza looked at her out of his long-lashed, romantic black eyes. He shouldn't dare to look at her like that. Crystal acknowledged haughtily, and she wouldn't have anyone see him for the world, but—Of course she mustn't see him after tonight. She hadn't come at night before. Maybe she was being desperately foolish, insanely indiscreet. Maybe Pablo thought—

In sudden panic, Crystal sprang to her feet to flee, but just then the soft strains of a guitar, playing a Mexican love song, paralyzed her with ecstasy.

NEXT: Pablo's wooing.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Grape fruit sections, cereal cream, broiled cottage ham, and raisins muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Scalloped mushrooms, shredded pepper and cabbage and beet salad, whole wheat bread, baked quinces, milk, tea.

DINNER—Braised beef with cabbage and tomato sauce, baked squash, cottage cheese salad, apple Charlotte, milk, coffee.

BRAISED BEEF WITH CABBAGE AND TOMATO SAUCE
One pound round steak, 1 small head red cabbage, 2 cups stewed tomatoes, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons salt.

Any lean piece of beef can be used and should be cut about 2 inches thick. Cut meat in two-inch cubes and brown quickly on all sides in a hot frying pan. Add 1 cup of hot water and simmer over a low fire, closely covered until tender. Remove meat from liquid and save stock to use for soup. In the meantime cook shredded cabbage in boiling water to cover for 20 minutes. Drain and add vinegar. Spread over a hot platter and arrange pieces of meat over cabbage. Heat tomatoes and rub through a sieve. Blend butter and flour until perfectly smooth and stir into the tomatoes. Heat to the boiling point and pour over meat. Season with salt and pepper and reheat in the oven before sending to the table.

MA FERGUSON WOULDN'T RATE IN RUSSIA

BY ALLENE SUMNER

There comes a time in every young housewife's life when, if the jelly doesn't jell and the children all have the measles at once, and the husband has a grouch and the plumbing leaks, the maid leaves and she can't get a woman for cleaning, she wonders what in the world she's getting out of this business, anyway, and why in the world she, who can speak three languages, write and make a good living in an independent career, is "doing work that just any moron can do."

The fact that she has been unable to find that ideal moron does not bother her. This is the thought that the housewife begins to think of such things as community kitchens and nurseries and wonder why the world of commerce and industry doesn't make it possible for women to bear children and carry on wage-earning, "self-expressive work," too.

All these questions which we wonder about here at home have been and are actually being worked out by Soviet Russia.

NO DISCRIMINATION

The fact that eight per cent of the all-Russia Soviet, the chief governing body of the nation, corresponding to our Congress, are women and that women chairmen of provincial and city Soviets, corresponding to our governors and mayors are so common that a Mrs. Ferguson or Ross wouldn't cause a ripple over there, is not nearly so interesting to the world of women as these facts—

That—Russia, has no job discriminations against married women," as Maurice Hindus puts it in an article in "Asia."

"They, too, may do whatever work they are fitted to perform, whether in the teaching or medical or engineering professions or in industry. Neither a school board nor a factory manager nor anyone in charge of hiring workers has a right to refuse a woman applicant a position just because

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

WITH all the wheels of the rig, the Tinies jumped and danced a jig. They all were very puzzled as to just what was in store. The hunter man had said that he had some nice plan in store, but gee, they'd waited long to find out what, and couldn't wait much more.

"Aw, tell us what's the big surprise," said Cappy. "Can't you realize that we are very curious?" This made the hunter smile. Said he, "There still is work to do and I'm expecting help from you. Just keep on guessing if you wish. I'll tell you after while."

"You came here in a little boat, and in the fear that it won't float, I don't intend to let you leave by sailing 'cross the sea. The puzzling plan I have in mind, will work much better, you will find. Help put the wheels upon the boat. Then leave it all to me."

"A fine idea," Scouty cried. "I'll bet we're going to have a ride. But, what will make the rowboat go if it's kept on the ground. We'll gladly work with all our might until the wheels are rolled on tight. But I can't understand just how well make the wheels go 'round."

"Don't ask so many questions, lad," the hunter said. "You'll soon be glad that I have planned this thrilling scheme." A smile spread on his face. This made the Tinymites feel good. They worked as quickly as they could, and soon the four big buggy wheels were in their proper place.

The Tinies shouted, "There, that's done, and now we're ready for some fun." The hunter quickly whistled, and lo and lo, a funny not. Out of the woods there came a deer, and all the bunch began to cheer. The hunter took it by the horns, and hitched it to the boat.

(We'll find out where the Tinymites are bound for in the next story.)

FACTS ABOUT OUR FRATERNALS

This is the seventeenth of a series of thumbnail sketches about fraternal organizations in Appleton.

More than half a century old is Deborah Rebekah lodge, No. 13, which was organized in 1872 with 13 charter members. The lodge was founded upon the principles of friendship, love and truth and is a social and welfare organization.

The first meetings were held above a grocery store on the site of the Appleton State bank. Later meetings were held where the Appleton Business college is at present and the third move was to the present quarters the Odd Fellow building on the corner of College-ave and Morrison-st. Early records cannot be deciphered and no list of the first officers is available. At the present time there are 210 members and the officers are noble grand, Maud Van Ryzin; vice noble grand, Lillian Bruns; recording secretary, Myrtle Van Ryzin; treasurer, Laura Bohon. Meetings are held twice a month on the first and third Wednesdays.

U. W. STUDENTS PLAN CHRISTMAS PARTY AT HOTEL

On Saturday evening, Dec. 22, a University of Wisconsin informal Christmas party will be held at the Morrison hotel in Chicago for all students, alumni and their friends. This will be the first attempt to give a party of this nature in Chicago.

Two well-known orchestras have been engaged. Abe Lyman and his band, who are being featured in "Good News," now running in Chicago, and Katie Farwell and his band, will play. The latter is a former basketball player at the university, and his orchestra is composed of Wisconsin graduates. Entertainment will be put on by professional performers from "Good News."

An entire floor of the hotel has been secured for the party. The ballroom can accommodate 1,000 couples. Tickets are being sold at fraternity houses in Madison.

CHURCH GROUP PLANS SOCIAL

A social will be given by the young people of Zion Lutheran church at 7:45 Monday evening in the assembly room of Zion school. A program will be given and there will be games, followed by refreshments.

After the evening's entertainment there will be an informal discussion concerning the organization of a young peoples league. A Christmas banquet at Conway hall Christmas week also will be planned. Members of the committee in charge will be Miss Anita Boese, Miss Florence Schaefer, Miss Clara Theimer, Miss Agnes Trockenbrod, Gilbert Stecker, Louis Waltman, Jr., Vernon Holterman and Harwood Hendricks.

A wedding supper followed the ceremony for 37 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Centner will reside at 711 W. Lorain-st.

HOSPITALITY OF SOUTH ENJOYED BY COOLIDGES

Swannanoa Club, Near Waynesboro, Virginia.—(P)—That southern hospitality which almost everyone has heard about is being enjoyed by President and Mrs. Coolidge at their country residence here in the Blue Ridge mountains.

To make up for the fact that the president does not wish to accept any invitations, the people hereabouts are stopping at Swannanoa and leaving all sorts of gifts of food, famous down here in the Old Dominion.

First to come was a dozen quail bagged on an estate neighboring Swannanoa, and an invitation that if the president would choose to shoulder his gun, he would be sure to find some for himself.

Then came a big, juicy Virginia ham cooked by an old mammy, Mary Verne, who is full of pride because famous persons like Marshal Foch and General Pershing have tasted her dishes. The ham that Mary turned out was covered with brown sugar rubbed well into the tender meat and stuck full of cloves.

A fruit cake, described as "old fashioned in every way," is resting on a shelf of Swannanoa's kitchen and in the basement are six boxes of apples grown in the neighborhood. The 30 pound turkey the president had for Thanksgiving dinner was sent by friends in Charlottesville.

The life at Swannanoa is quiet. Both the President and Mrs. Coolidge are seeking rest and few people have seen them since they returned to the club after a day in Charlottesville Thursday.

SECOND PARTY IS GIVEN BY CENTURY CLUB

Forty-five couples attended the Football dancing party given by the Century club Friday night at Elk club. The club was decorated with pennants, goal posts, footballs and college colors. Feature dances were a snake dance and a football dance. A mock band provided entertainment during intermission. Gib Horst orchestra played the dance program.

The party was the second given by the club this season and will be followed by the Christmas party on Dec. 28. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Boon were chairman of the party. They were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Frank, Mr. and Mrs. Morrow Hoerner, Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Mielke, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Gmeiner and Mr. and Mrs. William Kolb.

PARTIES

Mrs. Fred Bush, 721 N. Lawrence-st., entertained the Four Square Schafkopf club Tuesday night at her home. Prizes were won by Mrs. William Brooks, Mrs. James Lyman and C. V. Berque. Mr. D. L. Chady, 740 E. Hancock-st., will entertain the club next Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Koester, 315 E. Harris-st., were surprised Friday evening at their home in honor of their sixth wedding anniversary. Thirty relatives and friends were present. Schafkopf was played and prizes were won by Frank Smith, Roy Lillie, and Mrs. Anton Nathrop.

Miss Mable Burke, Post-bldg., entertained at three tables of bridge Friday evening. Honors went to Mrs. J. L. Johns, John Morgan, and Miss Mary DeJonge.

CARD PARTIES

Seventeen tables of cards were in play at the open card party given by the Christian Mother society of St. Mary church Friday afternoon at Columbia hall. Mrs. Wenzel Hassman and Miss Katherine Tracy won prizes at bridge and Mrs. J. Miller and Mrs. Fred Stoffel were prize winners at schafkopf. Mrs. Margaret Dorn was chairman of arrangements and members of the committee were Mrs. T. G. Miron, Mrs. P. H. Ryan and Mrs. James Hannagan. Mrs. Rufus Lowell will be chairman of the card party next week Friday at Columbia hall.

Bridge and schafkopf will be played at the open card party to be given by the Ladies Auxiliary of Catholic Order of Foresters at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon at Catholic home. Mrs. William Schulze will be in charge of the party.

Society And Royalty At Manville Wedding

Pleasantville, N. Y.—(P)—Estelle Romaine Manville, daughter of an American industrial king and Count Folke Bernadotte, nephew of the king of Sweden, will be married late Saturday at a ceremony estimated to cost three quarters of a million dollars.

Invited guests include the majority of those socially prominent in New York, members of the Swedish royal family and of the aristocracy of Europe. It will be the first time a member of a royal family will have been married on United States soil.

Due to the small size of St. John's Episcopal church, where the ceremony will be performed, wedding guests will number only about 250, but the guest list for the reception at Hi-Eamara, the Manville country estate, included 1,000 names.

After the wedding the bride and groom will tour the United States, which the groom has not seen extensively and will later make their home in Stockholm.

Florists, musicians and caterers have long been in preparation for the event; the little country church has been redecorated and an elaborate Paris trousseau provided for the bride. Her bridal veil will be of Brussels lace, which was worn by Count Bernadotte's grandmother, the late Queen Sophia of Sweden, at her wedding. The veil will be held in place by a coronet of silver and precious stones. Three ministers are to officiate.

Count Folke Bernadotte is the youngest son of Prince Oscar Bernadotte, second brother of King Gustav V of Sweden.

Miss Manville, who is the daughter of H. E. Manville, formerly of Milwaukee, chairman of the board of Johns-Manville, Inc., made her debut a few years ago in New York. She is a descendant of Joffrey de Magnavil, an adherent of William the Conqueror.

CHURCH TO SHOW MOTION PICTURE SUNDAY EVENING

The motion picture "Old Ironsides" will be the theme of the Sunday evening service at the Congregational church. Doors of the church will open at 7 o'clock. The picture will start at 7:15 and no one will be admitted after 7:30. Children under 16 years of age will not be permitted at the service unless accompanied by an adult.

The picture of the evening is about the warship which featured in early American history. The stars in the play are Wallace Beery and George Bancroft. The picture has been shown all over the country and has always been enthusiastically received.

Music for the evening's program will be furnished by LaVahn Maesch at the new church organ and by a quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Waterman, Helen Mueller and J. Raymond Walsh. The quartet will sing "Saviour Breathe an Evening Blessing" and "Smilin' Through."

GROUPS BUY PICTURES FOR LOCAL SCHOOLS

Kaukauna—Different organizations of the city are buying art pictures for the city schools as a result of the recent art exhibit given in Park school by students of the high school, according to W. P. Hagman, chairman of the exhibit committee.

Superintendent James F. Cavanaugh and Principal Louis G. Dryer will have charge of buying pictures with the money obtained in the exhibit. Two lodges, Knights of Columbus and Lady Knights of Columbus bought pictures for the school before the exhibit was staged. The Kaukauna Women's club and the Eastern Star lodge bought pictures as a result of the exhibit. The Women's Relief Corps also plans to buy a picture.

Members of the committee to promote the buying of art pictures are Ernest Landreman, William Ashe, Louis Nelson, James F. Cavanaugh, Mrs. J. Reginuss and Mrs. J. Hale.

KAUKAUNA TO HAVE FOREMEN'S CLASSES

Work Will Be Organized in Near Future, School Head Promises

Kaukauna—Kaukauna is included in the cities which will have Foremen Training conference classes similar to those which start at Appleton Wednesday afternoon. The local plants which will have the classes are the Thimpany Pulp and Paper company and the Combined Locks Paper company.

The work is a part of the pulp and paper mill vocational adult education program of the state, and is carried on under the direction of the local director of each school, William T. Sullivan, director of the local school, is working on the adult education program for this city.

Other cities to have foremanship classes are Green Bay, Menasha, Neenah, Appleton and Marinette. The classes are popular in the cities that have the course. Classes held in Eau Claire, Wausau, Stevens Point and Wisconsin Rapids, which ended last week had an enrollment of 245 students. The enrollment for the Fox River Valley is estimated at 325 men.

The exact date for the course to be given in this city is not yet determined, but it will be started in the near future. Classes for the course will be opened Tuesday at Green Bay. The first class will be opened Monday at Marinette.

PEDDLERS ARE ADVISED TO TAKE OUT LICENSES

NORTH WISCONSIN STARTS FIGHT ON FROSTKING'S GRIP

Counties Will Make Special Effort to Keep Main Highways Open

Superior—(AP)—The northland's annual fight has started to keep the frosty grip of King winter from choking the arteries of traffic.

Northern counties are making a special effort to keep the roads clear of snow block until after the Christmas and New Year holidays, although anti-snow equipment will be in operation throughout the winter.

The nine northern counties, in division number 8 of the state highway work, have pledged each other that they will keep the majority of county trunk roads open as well as all the federal and state trunks.

Last winter Bayfield, Sawyer, Washburn and Rusk counties were not included on this program.

Each county has appropriated about $10,000 for snow removal purposes. Bayfield which in other years has not been included in the snow removal program has voted $10,000 to keep its roads open. Each county is getting small amount of equipment for winter work and in a few counties snow removal machines have been placed for demonstration purposes.

In Ashland county do definite appropriation was made but the highway commissioner is authorized to use "a sum sufficient" for removal of snow. This county will keep No. 2, 112 and 24-open, and possibly 77. The latter road was not cleared last year but the board has talked of including it in this year's snow removal program.

In Bayfield county all of No. 24 will remain open and No. 13 to Port Wing, down county trunk highway A to Iron River; all of No. 112 to the Ashland county line; all of No. 2, except from Iron River to No. 112 which will be closed.

The only means of exit which Port Wing, Herberst and Cornucopia in Bayfield-co have with the outer world is either No. 13 to Washburn and Ashland or No. 13 down county trunk A to Iron River. All merchant and supplies for Port Wing is of from a week's visit with relatives at Milwaukee, Chicago and Joliet, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil White and children of Milwaukee, spent Thursday with the former's parents.

Mrs. E. Fello has returned from a two weeks' stay at Appleton. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kesler were visitors at Seymour Thursday evening.

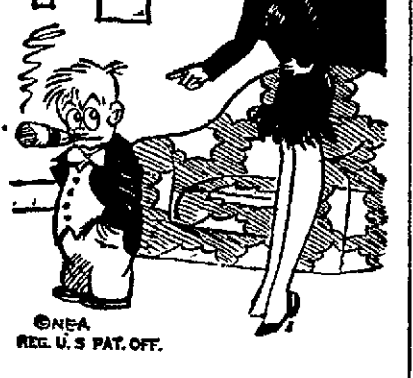

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Kexel visited relatives at Appleton Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Sander were visitors at Fremont Thursday.

Miss Genevieve Burdick of Plymouth will be a weekend guest at the home of her parents.

brought by rail to Iron River and then trucked up to Port Wing.

Douglas county has appropriated $5,000 for snow removal and $5,000 for purchase of new snow fence. This county will keep all of its popularly traveled roads open as much as possible, and the towns will keep whatever town roads they wish free from snow.

All counties were setting up snow fences this week and last, in preparation for the first snow flurry of the north woods country. With the first heavy snow storm which might threaten progress of traffic through the division, snow plows will be put on the roads. Last year the main highways were pretty well passable all winter with the exception of a few hours and possibly one or two days following an unusually heavy storm when the plows found clearing work slow.

Snow removal this year will be considerably simplified because of the oil treatment highways in this division received during the past summer, the highway officials pointed out. Snow or water will not mix with oil, so the snow cannot pack into the oiled roads it was explained, whereas, on a gravelled road not treated with oil, the snow packs in the surface and forms an ice mat which

Books Of The Week

By W. E. McPHEETERS

Professor of English, Lawrence College

This Book Is Work Of 60 Authors

THE SECOND AMERICAN CANON, edited by Alfred Kreymborg, Lewis Mumford and Paul Rosenfeld. The Macaulay Co.

This second 'yearbook of American literature' might very well be called a one-volume library. It contains contributions by sixty authors. In it are a full-length novel by John Herrmann, a full-length play by Waldo Frank, four novelettes (one by P. D.), four narrative poems (one by Conrad Aiken, one by Alfred Kreymborg), short stories by Sherwood Anderson and others, essays and miscellaneous by various writers and short poems by Robert Frost, John Goul Fletcher, and others.

Here certainly is enough reading for many a long winter evening. There is no very patent unity in the collection. The volume represents an attempt to provide an outlet for material by known and unknown American authors of talent which otherwise might not easily reach the public. Complete freedom seems to have been given the authors and there is in their writings an element of frankness in the form of open expression of opinion and unrestrained confession of experience that will surprise and startle, not say shock, conservative readers.

50 MORE BABIES BORN AT HOSPITAL THIS YEAR

Nearly 50 more babies were born at St. Elizabeth's hospital this year than last, according to a report from hospital officials. From Jan. 1 to Dec. 3, 1927, 390 births were recorded, and from Jan. 1 to Dec. 1, 1928, 431 babies were born. Last year the number included five pairs of twins, and in 1928 four pairs of twins were born.

Charles Fox Was Bad Man Of England

CHARLES JAMES FOX, by John Drinkwater, Cosmopolitan Book Corporation.

Charles James Fox, "gentleman, gambler, statesman," was one of the most versatile, brilliant, paradoxical and wicked men in English history. His steadfast sympathy for the American colonies when they began to resist the oppressive demands of the mother country and his continued, outspoken and determined opposition (an opposition that annoyed King George III very much) to coercion of the American patriots when they carried their resistance to the extent of taking up arms against England have caused Americans since his death to take always of him with kindness and to maintain a special interest in his checked and spectacular career.

John Drinkwater, well known poet, dramatist and biographer, has in a beautiful volume attempted to present the high lights of Fox's career. He has doubtless made his biography more valuable in some respects by stressing the political phases of Fox's career. It is probable, however, that had he seen it to give more space to such episodes as Fox's remarkable affair with the famous actress, Mrs. Robinson, "The Exquisite Perdita," his story might have contained more of human interest and made a greater appeal to the average reader.

STATISTICS CLASS TO SUPERVISE CENSUS

The class in statistics at Lawrence college, under the direction of Professor L. E. Boettiger, will supervise the Appleton church census which will probably get underway in January. The Y. M. C. A. and chamber of commerce plans committees are now arranging plans which will be submitted to the college group. Twelve churches have offered their services in conducting the census.

It is hoped that before actual work is started, churches of all denominations in the city will cooperate. The census will include the number of people in each church and the total number of churches and people of a denomination. It also will serve as a complete church directory.

STAGE And SCREEN

Thrills and Mystery Abound in "HAUNTED HOUSE"

Those who like their mystery seasoned with laughter and who prefer a cold chill topped by a grin, will do well to visit the Elite theatre today and Sunday where "The Haunted House" will create mirth and mystery galore.

Chester Conklin and Flora Finch and others of the fine cast provide plenty of comedy in this First National picture which Benjamin Christensen directed. This comedy team is always to be relied upon and their experiences in a house that is reputed to be decidedly an unhealthy spot for people with weak nerves, are ex-cruciating.

They go there seeking a hidden packet of bonds; they run up against mad men, somnambulists, a horrible old caretaker and a hundred and one things of an untoward nature.

Thelma Todd, Eve Southern and Barbara Bedford are three beautiful girls who provide the love element as well as much of the mystery. Montagu Love and William V. Mong are two of the strange and menacing figures while Larry Kent is the handsome young hero of the piece. There are a number of other talented actors and withal the cast is far above the ordinary.

Much may be said for the sets; the interiors of the old house are perfect in their atmospheric character. The original stage play, by Owen Davis, possessed fewer thrills than the film version.

There is no questioning the popularity of mystery pictures and "The Haunted House" is one of the finest.

"THE RED DANCE" — Surpassing her great role of "Charmanne" in "What Price Glory," is the verdict of New York critics on the performances of Dolores Del Rio in Fox Films "The Red Dance," which is coming to the Elite theatre next Monday.

"THE WOMAN FROM MOSCOW" — Tragic and happy moments from the life of Pola Negri have been brought to the screen in fictionized form in her newest Paramount production, "The Woman From Moscow," now at Fischer's Appleton theatre.

By coincidence, many of the dramatic incidents of Victorien Sardou's powerful story are paralleled by events that actually have seen Miss Negri as their central character.

The locale of the story, a baronial estate in Russia, is much like one on which Miss Negri lived years ago, as a girl. As a girl she danced in the snow at the Imperial Ballet of St. Petersburg.

The Cossacks riding like the wind in "The Woman From Moscow," bring to mind the night when a small child, she crouched on a Polish winter night to watch Cossacks looting and burn her home. Her father was sent to Siberia and she and her mother lacked enough clothing to keep them warm.

As a friendless stranger, she took Warsaw by storm in her first stage appearance.

Aristocratic Paris is the background for much of the important scenes in "The Woman From Moscow." Paris has seen much of Miss Negri. She has a chateau near Paris where her mother lives. She herself visited it last summer (1928).

Norman Kerry appears opposite the Polish star in this new Paramount production. Other prominent supporting players include Otto Matthesen, Lawrence Grant, Maude George, Paul Lukas, Bodi Rosing, Mirra Rayo, Martha Franklin, Jack Loden and Tetsu Komai.

By G. R. McINTYRE

FOUR members of the championship East Green Bay football team, three of the Appleton eleven, runners up, two from Manitowoc, high and one from Sheboygan and Oshkosh, make up the Post-Crescent all-conference football team, that mythical body which is supposed to contain the names of the ranking gridgers on conference teams.

A second squad also was picked to pay tribute to the youngsters who for some reason or other have fallen just a bit short of making the "first team." On this team there are three men from Manitowoc, two each from E. Green Bay, Sheboygan, and Oshkosh, and one each from Manitowoc and Appleton.

Picking a first team or even a second squad is no easy task as most persons will agree. However, there were a few outstanding players on the team and they made their choice comparatively easy. Naturally the men most noticeable in their performance were fellows who played on the East Green Bay and Appleton teams, both outstanding squads.

In at least one instance, it was necessary to change a man's position from the one he formerly played to another spot to give him the coveted honor. However, there were few outstanding guards and many good tackles and therefore the choice strengthens the mythical eleven rather than weakening it.

Backfielders, the ball carriers, always hold first interest and, it must be said they were the easiest men to pick. Bobby Kunitz, Appleton, and Tadych, Oshkosh, were picked as halfbacks because both have shown great ball toting ability and because they both are all-around players. Kunitz is more of the driving type back that coaches like, so well, a youngster who is, one, once this side of being a cracking good fullback yet is a half, par excellence. He is stocky and hard and besides carrying the ball would make a great blocking half. Tadych is a pretty much of the fleet footed ball carrier particularly adapted to open field running.

Galbraith of Manitowoc was given choice as fullback. He performed on a mediocre team yet scored heavily which means he can easily get that extra yard for another first down. Men who played against him had higher respect for his abilities. He also was clever at backing up. The Warner Becker gets the call for quarterback, a position he played much of the time on the Red Devil team. He can run and pass and kick and that he knows how to call plays was shown by the manner in which he ran his team roughsided over all others, making use of every weakness in opposing lines. Tadych is also a good punter.

The second team backfield has Kennedy, Fondy, at quarter, a clever back who brought in several touchdowns when it was set for several touchdowns. Meyer, Sheboygan's great ball carrier, Skokore, who might have displaced any of the halves on the first eleven had he played often and Daman, East Green Bay, fullback.

Picking linemen was a highly difficult problem because of the abundance of tackles and several good ends and the lack of anything else. Jake Schaefer, Appleton, was picked for right end and Wayland Becker for left end. The Appleton youngster is a veteran of three seasons' experience, a hard player and one of the greatest defensive players ever seen in action. He also is handy at receiving passes. Becker, too, is a great pass receiver and mighty sturdy on defense.

The choice for tackles would not be hard if there was only one to pick. Roeser, captain of East Green Bay is outstanding first choice for left tackle and is given the leadership of the team. His play all season marked him a conference selection from the start. Picking a right tackle is a harder job but the choice seems to be Kranhold of Appleton. It was his offensive work that enabled Appleton to rip off the many yards through the opposition's tackles while every tackle in the conference is well aware of the defensive strength of the Appleton line's right side.

Kummer, Sheboygan gets the call for right guard, his strong playing having made his a marked player throughout the season. He is a hard tackler and fighter, and a heady player, the kind of men coaches like to have. The left guard position isn't so easy to fill but, somehow, with the abundance of tackles, Goryehka, Manitowoc, should fill into the position. He ranked one-two-three among the tackles and with the dearth of good guards can be placed at the new post.

Martin of East Green Bay gets the call for the pivot post. He has shown himself an all round man with great defensive work against line plunging and passing. His ball passing to East high backs this fall also has been of the best and it isn't hard to give him the honor.

Ends on the second team are Gatawackas, Sheboygan star, and Hanson, Fond du Lac, both good men but lacking the polish of the two first string choices. Jannusch, Oshkosh, and Kuplie, Manitowoc, rank second for the tackle positions with Reetz, Appleton and Hightower, Fond du Lac guards. The Appleton youngster probably doesn't strike the popular fancy as a guard but he's always in the game, tackles hard, blocks with the best of them and uses good football judgment. Struebing of Oshkosh gets the choice for second squad center.

AND HERE'S ANOTHER SELECTION FOR THE ALL-AMERICAN TEAMS

New York — (AP) — Out of a list of 278 selected players from every part of the country the New York Sun Saturday named its all-America eleven, an eleven of alternates and a list of 75 players for honorable mention.

As is the newspaper's custom, watches are awarded to members of the first team, silver medals to the alternates and this year the honorable mention men receive bronze medals.

The Big Ten gets two places on the first team, the Pacific coast gets three, the South and Texas one each and four go to the east.

The first and alternate selections follow:

LITTLE FOUR AGAIN SAYS "NO SCOUTING"

Beloit College Will Hold Conference Track Meet on May 25

A continuation of the no scouting rule was pledged by the members of the Little Four athletic conference, Beloit, Carroll, Lawrence and Ripon, in the fall meeting of the conference officials in Milwaukee, it was announced Friday. Scouting, "athletic shopping," over-emphasis on coaching, exploitation of championships and general excesses to which modern college athletic programs are subject, against which the Little Four was originally organized a year ago, continued to be under the ban of the conference officials, according to Mr. S. F. Shattuck, Neenah, conference commissioner.

A year of intercollegiate competition under the rules of the new Wisconsin intercollegiate athletics conference, according to Mr. Shattuck, has shown that this alliance successfully defies a well defined public sentiment which would make a college judged and known for the strength of its athletic teams, regardless of how these teams are built or recruited.

Emphasis upon true sportsmanship rather than upon athletic victories was again pledged by the conference members. Attention of the officials is being directed to the support of competition in the minor sports which would include tennis, golf, wrestling, swimming, and cross country.

Beloit will have the Little Four state track meet, May 25.

BOBBY KUNITZ TOPS CONFERENCE SCORERS

Kranhold, Tackle, Scores Only Two Placements of Season

Now that all valley conference games are over and the final computations are available, Bobby Kunitz, star ball carrier on the Appleton high school eleven, rests serenely on top of conference scorers, the biggest individual scoring machine in the league. He has crossed conference goal lines nine times for a total of 54 points.

Three other Appleton youths are among the league scorers, and one of them holds a record that is as unique as Kunitz'. He is Kranhold, Coach Shields' right tackle, who is the only griddier in the valley to boot a single kick from placement and he was able to pull the trick twice. Crane of Appleton, and DeYoung also have their names among the scorers, the former with two tallies, the latter with one. Tadych of Oshkosh runs in second place among scorers with eight touchdowns. He is followed by Warren Becker, East Green Bay with six touchdowns and nine kicks for the extra point for a total of 45 points.

Scoring tabulations follow:

BADGER HARRIERS MAY NOT GET VARSITY "W"

Madison — (AP) — Unless the athletic council gets generous, none of Wisconsin's cross country harriers will be awarded a varsity "W."

When cross country was made a major sport at Wisconsin a year ago, the requirements for a letter were stiffened so that a runner must either win first place in a dual, triangular or quadrangular meet to obtain a "W." None of the Badgers won individual honors this year and the team finished fourth in the Big Ten meet last Saturday.

A GRADUATE OF GEORGIA TECH

The Chicago Cubs will have the man considered the best young catcher in the Southern League next spring in Tom Angley, who is graduate of Georgia Tech.

Notre Dame Ready For Battle With U. Of S. C.

Army and Stanford Battle in Yankee Stadium; Georgetown at Detroit

Los Angeles — (AP) — Notre Dame's football expeditionary force Saturday marched for the third time against the walls of Troy, defended by the University of Southern California, leading coast eleven.

Ready beyond a doubt were the Trojans of Coach Howard Jones, for they had run through a difficult season without mishap and the hospital staff which had shocked local fans with its persistence throughout the year disappeared when "Dynamic" Don Williams, quarterback, shook off a threat of influenza.

A promise of a clear day, a fast field and mild weather only added to the uncertainty of the outcome.

The result of the previous inter-sectional contests between these teams were: 1926 at Los Angeles Notre Dame 18; Southern California 12; 1927 at Soldiers Field, Chicago, Notre Dame 7; California 6.

New York — (AP) — Army and Stanford, mighty gridiron Giants of the east and west, clash at the Yankee Stadium Saturday for a parting salute to old king football, now slowly breathing his last.

The "house that Ruth built" accommodates 86,000 persons and there won't be any vacant spaces, barring stormy weather, when the kick-off is made at 1:30 p. m. All seats have been sold out for weeks.

Those fans who are not going to the game because they like high class football will be in the stands. To see just what sort of black magic Glenn S. (Pop) Warner has taught his Stanford boys this year. New York knows what Biff Jones' husky Army Cadets can do. Now they'd like to see another demonstration of the Pacific coast brand of football.

The glimpse they got on Thursday when Oregon State so thoroughly trounced New York University convinced all but the most skeptical that it is a very, very good brand indeed.

Detroit — (AP) — Playing Georgetown Saturday, the University of Detroit, undefeated and untied this year, was defending a record of 14 consecutive victories. This record was started last season.

Georgetown has been beaten only once in 1928, Carnegie Tech doing the job.

A crowd of 30,000 persons had tickets for the game.

MUST BE PRETTY GOOD

But Sprague, Army captain, is fast enough to run the hundred in ten seconds and strong enough to put the shot on the track team and box on the Cadet boxing team.

PAGE THE SCOUTS, PLEASE

Keith Strong, powerful N. Y. U. halfback, is said to be one of the best college ball players in the east.

WE WANT A SANFORD!

His father and two brothers having captained football teams at Richmond university, Nevitt Sanford, a halfback, is in line for the captaincy of the 1929 eleven.

IT'S A TOUGH BLOW

Three members of Penn's regular backfield will graduate in June. They are Paul Scull, Johnny Shober and Paul Murphy.

NEW TICKET RULE EFFECTIVE AT U. W.

Only 300 Tickets Available to Public for Caging Games

Madison — (AP) — A thin stream of Wisconsin people, 300, to be exact, will be the fortunate ones to see the Wisconsin basketball team in action this season, for the remaining seats are to be sold to university students.

This was decided at a meeting of the university athletic council here Wednesday night, when plans for distribution of basketball tickets for the season were discussed.

The council took the following action:

The complimentary list was cut so that all members of the staff not head coaches were allowed but two tickets for any one of the three series. Additional staff members and employees were allowed but one ticket free for any one series. The tickets derived from this group will be placed on sale at a designated hour before each game to be sold only to students who will present fee cards.

A block of 300 tickets will be made available to alumni and the public for each contest. The remaining tickets will be for students, faculty and employees who can order by series through the mail at the student rate.

When a student or faculty member or employee buys tickets in this manner his fee card is automatically eligible to be presented for the individual seats placed on sale before each game.

Orders from alumni and the public will be received at once and field, as of December 6. If an applicant orders for series "A" and that series is exhausted his order will be filled in Series "B" and so on. The price of tickets to alumni and the public will be $1.50 a ticket with a 20-cent mailing charge.

The Lombard game Dec. 29 is the 10th game on the schedule and is not included in any series and can be ordered in addition to application for any series.

The series are:

"A" — Franklin, Dec. 10; Michigan, Jan. 7, and Northwestern, Feb. 18.

"B" — Indiana, Jan. 14; Bradley, Feb. 12, and Chicago, March 9.

"C" — Carleton, Jan. 1; Minnesota, Jan. 18, and Purdue, Feb. 25.

Ray Miller, Chicago, Knocks Out McLarnin

BY CHARLES W. DUNKLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON — Ray Miller, blonde haired 27-year-old Chicagoan, Saturday is brewing poison for Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion.

Miller, heretofore regarded as an in and out in the boxing business, became the foremost contender for Mandell's title, as a result of his smashing victory over Jimmy McLarnin, the baby faced puncher from Los Angeles, in their battle in the Olympic stadium, Friday night.

A 3 to 1 shot in the betting, scored a surprising triumph when he stopped McLarnin, acknowledged king of lightweight slugs, in the seventh round of their scheduled 10 round battle.

The victory goes into the record books as a technical knockout for Miller. McLarnin, bleeding from an ugly gash under his right eye, his face a smudge of blood, sat in his corner helplessly beaten and unable to respond to the bell for the start.

Miller, conceding 5 1/2 pounds, really defeated McLarnin in the first round, although the contest did not end until six rounds later. In the first exchange of blows, Miller smashed McLarnin with vicious left hook. The blow caught the coast boxer on the right side of the face, opening a gash and breaking a small blood vessel under his right eye.

After that McLarnin never was himself. The blow settled the issue, although McLarnin, fighting with the courage of a wounded beast, managed to win the fourth and fifth rounds.

It was a tribute to McLarnin's courage that he lasted through the seventh round. Trailing in the fourth and fifth rounds, Miller opened up in the sixth and had his foe's knees on the verge of touching the ring floor from a battering to the head and body.

Miller won five of the seven rounds, subjecting McLarnin to an unmerciful beating. Even at the end of the first round he was so grossly that he went to the wrong corner. At the end of the sixth, he blindly staggered into Miller's corner again.

PRINTING SHOP IS EQUIPPED TO CARE FOR EXTRA ORDERS

Bauer Company and Appleton Press Help Each Other in Emergencies

An agreement has been established between the Bauer Printing shop and the Appleton Press, both located in the Press building on N. Appleton-st., which enables the one to help the other in emergency cases, according to Max Bauer, proprietor of the print shop.

With the increased demand for advertising matter and the form of handbills and circulars, it has become necessary for the Bauer company to draft the Appleton Press machines into service to turn out a 24 hour day service, according to Mr. Bauer. When the Appleton Press machines are overworked and time is scarce, the Bauer company machines are put to use.

The printing business is especially good for this time of the year, Mr. Bauer reported. Hundreds of jobs are being turned out weekly. They vary from small hand cards to large full and double sheet advertising matter.

The Bauer shop features quality, with a 24 hour day service. There are daily calls for printing cards, advertising cards, office forms, hand bills, and many other kinds of job printing. New equipment has been installed which turns out office forms in any style desired, and ready for filing.

Christmas card printing is very light this year because many concerns are handling them, he reported. Many people buy cards years in advance and keep a supply on hand. For further information regarding any kind of job printing, inquire at the Bauer Printing shop on N. Appleton-st., or call 1592.

"Famous First Ladies"

Mrs. Taft, often called "the tiniest first lady" because of her stature, had not been in the White House many months before she was taken seriously ill. She was stricken with paralysis while on board the presidential yacht, the Sylph.

It was almost a year before she recovered. Meanwhile she insisted the usual garden parties be carried on, while she watched from a window.

As a result of her illness, Mrs. Taft lost the power of speech for some time. The president used to help her learn to talk again.

The Tafts observed their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary in the White House. Mrs. Taft recovered from her illness and took great enjoyment in arranging floral decorations for the event. President Taft, though a teetotaler, insisted that there be plenty of champagne and punch for everybody on such occasions as this. (To Be Continued)

Posters Advertising Campaign Are Distributed Among Business Places

A number of Appleton boy scouts are distributing Christmas seal posters to be posted in business places. The boys also will assist in the sale of Christmas seals.

Funds raised through the annual sale of Christmas seals are used to finance the statewide program of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association. The money pays for free chest clinics and provides care for the tubercular. The health program which the W. A. T. A. carries on in the schools of the state includes the Modern Health Crusade; health calendars which are sent as a supplement to the "Crusader" the monthly magazine of the association; and health dramas, which include plays and songs as well as the Punch and Judy Health show of the association which has been witnessed by more than 300,000 school children. Miss Anita Nemacheck of this city plays in this year's Punch and Judy show.

The W. A. T. A. also promotes the establishment of tuberculosis sanatoria and preventoria, and maintains a school for the training of public health workers. A year-round educational campaign on tuberculosis and other health problems is carried on by the association through newspapers, magazines, lectures, moving pictures and exhibits.

STRING QUARTET WILL APPEAR AT VESPER

David Scouler, soloist, and a string quartet composed of Misses Janet Gaudreault and Eleanor Voecks, violins, Phoebe Nichol, cello, and Ramona Husemann, piano, will provide the program at the twilight vesper service at the Methodist church at 4:30 Sunday afternoon.

The program will open with a group of songs by Mr. Scouler: Bird Songs, Eventide by Coates; Dawn in the Desert, Ross; and Life, and Death by Coleridge-Taylor. Berceuse by Godard will be played by the string quartet, and Miss Nichol will play "The Swan" by Saint Saens. Other numbers by the string quartet will be Cavaleria Rusticana by Barcogni and Moments Musical by Schubert. Mr. Scouler also will sing "Jal-Pleure En Reve" by Rue; "Page's Road Song" by Navello; and "E Lucevan le Stelle" (La Tosca) by Puccini.

The offertory anthem, "Soft Floating on the Evening Air" by Root, will be sung by the church quartet and choir, and devotional meditation will be conducted by Dr. J. A. Holmes, pastor.

Dr. A. L. Koch will not be in his office from Mon. to Thurs. However, appointments may be made there any time.

FEW SPECIAL DRIVER'S PERMITS RECOMMENDED

Only a few boys and girls, under 16 years of age, are making applications to Judge Fred V. Hememann for special driver's permits. Under the state law the county judge may recommend the issuance of a license to a boy or girl under 16 years of age providing they can show a good reason for needing the permit and providing they can prove they are efficient drivers. Up to this week the judge has issued 221 such permits.

SCHOOL HANDBOOK HIGHLY COMMENDED

Congratulatory Letters Are Received by Student Sponsors

Congratulatory letters commenting upon the excellence of the Blue and Orange, high school handbook, were read by Norman Zanzig, president, at the meeting of the student council Monday. Letters were received from Dr. Arthur Gillett, president of the Superior state teachers' college; John Callahan, state superintendent of public instruction; Frank Holt, registrar at the University of Wisconsin; Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president of Lawrence college; and Earl MacInnis, superintendent of schools at Jefferson.

The book, considered one of the finest in its class, also was favorably commented upon at the meeting of the cumulative record committee which met in Milwaukee prior to the state teachers' convention, and excerpts from it were read to the committee as examples of good handbook material.

A report was read by Charles Schafer, captain of the school boy patrol; Miss Virginia Rutten gave a financial report concerning the lyceum course; and Carson Harwood reported on the status of student council property. Norman Zanzig, announced the Christmas dance on Dec. 15.

KEEP FOODSTUFFS COVERED, HEALTH OFFICER ADVISES

With the Christmas shopping period in full swing and in view of the habit of merchants placing candies and other foodstuffs on display wherever possible, Theodore Sanders, deputy health officer, has issued a warning to merchants to keep the articles under cover or risk prosecution. Mr. Sanders soon will start a survey of stores and bakeries to ascertain whether merchants are complying with the state law. All foodstuffs such as candies, sugared fruits, and bakery goods must be kept under glass, according to Mr. Sanders.

RESUME WORK ON SUBWAY PROJECT

Company Awarded Excavating Contract Stakes Out Ground for Digging

Work on the E. Wisconsin-ave subway under the Chicago and Northwestern railway company tracks was started Wednesday by Simpson-Parker company, to whom the excavating contract has been let. The contractors continued their activity Thursday and will attempt to rush the work as fast as possible.

City officials are expecting to run into legal difficulties through construction of the structure, it is said, following notice of two property owners that damage to their property will run to $17,000 and indication that two others will object to selling property for the high level road.

Cutting off the sewer from E. Wisconsin-ave to the river also has caused inconvenience and protest about the stretch from the ravine. City sewers no longer run into the main sewer at this point, according to officials, and there is no chance of prohibiting use by persons residing at the far end of the street.

Opponents of the subway still are hoping they will not have to build the structure and point to the fact a decision from the state supreme court will be coming Monday on the question of a rehearing. The decision is result of the case presented to the court Nov. 9, in answer to mandamus proceedings started by the railroad commission through the attorney general's office.

By Order of the City Council of Menasha, Bus Service over Mill St. Bridge will be discontinued Dec. 1st. All busses will operate via Main St. Bridge and their patrons will transfer across foot bridge for busses to Neenah. WIS. MICH. POWER CO.
